Shoving, constantly moving, Park strives as a united force to win basketball games, take Social tests, glide through dances — a blurred mass of humanity partitioned into 2,300 individual faces. At first the features of these faces are lost in the conformity of an institution, but distinctions emerge as each finds a place for himself as a whole being. His eyes light up with the first glimmer of understanding generated between teacher and student. His hands begin to mold a shape of clay or to pen an emotion. His enthusiasm is channeled toward the new Constitutional amendment, the French Club's dinner, or the wrestling team's grueling practices. His mind debates the question of free will and the probable Republican nominations. He expresses himself differently because he is separate. But the binding force of the mass still lingers. Park provides the opportunities for each to find himself, he determines the character of Park. The pace may quicken, the hands and faces may disappear momentarily, but they endure to participate actively in Park life.

Seated at a School Board meeting are Harold R. Enestvedt, superintendent; Dwane E. Billbe, director; Mrs. Winifred H. Northcott, treasurer; Andrew Hobart, chairman; Earl E. Tepley, clerk; Carter DeLaittre, director; and Robert E. Nelson, director.

The School Board is composed of six residents of St. Louis Park, who are elected for a three-year term. One required regular meeting is held each month, plus a varied number of special meetings. Duties of the School Board are all centered around its main goal: to see that the educational program of St. Louis Park is carried out effectively.

One of this year's projects was a detailed review of the school health program. Also, reports from the English Department recommending its curriculum changes for the Junior and Senior High School were examined. Planning ahead for the future, the Board investigated the need for the enlargement of school facilities and proposed a budget for financing this undertaking. It is through the operation of the School Board that problems are solved and progress is made. Thus, the advancement of the educational program is assured.

It Takes Many People To Fill School's Jobs

It takes many people to run a school as large as Park. Services that students take for granted are performed quietly and efficiently behind the scenes: keeping records of the 2,200 people in the school, sending out college transcripts, and putting out daily absentee lists. Also, students are transported to and from school, fed hot lunches, and kept healthy—a big order. The building is kept clean and in constant repair. These jobs, executed by secretaries, bus drivers, cooks, the nurse, and custodians, all help to make life pleasant.

Necessary for the Smooth Operation of Park.

Classes Plus Teachers Mold Present and Future

The primary objective of education is to develop in students a knowledge of basic subjects and to instill in them a greater appreciation for learning. Park promoted this not only in the conventional way, but through the addition of modern equipment in science and language areas and new courses of Accelerated Shorthand and Physical Science. Progressive ideas toward subject matter such as nuclear science, math analysis, and emphasis on profitable speech topics also contributed to student development. Courses challenged students to think for themselves and to form their own opinions. Therefore, this academic system prepared teenagers for the day when they would find a place in an adult world.

Lives and Thoughts.

Ninety-four teachers begin the day at Park at the early hour of 7:10 a.m. Besides a new assistant principal, 17 teachers joined the staff this year. Over 30% of the faculty have their masters degrees, and many have studied at schools such as the Sorbonne. Their hobbies range from reading to rug hooking. Teaching four to five classes a day and taking care of other duties make teaching a job that seldom ends.

Necessity To Communicate, To Be Understood,

To do anything well, one must express himself well. At Park, the courses of Speech, Dramatic Arts, and Journalism emphasized effectual self-expression. In Speech, this goal developed through studying the importance of mechanics and thought in delivering a talk. Students of Dramatic Arts observed effective histrionic expression by attending a play at the Guthrie Theater. Journalism stressed effective expression through writing. To acquaint themselves with the professional field, the classes toured the Star and Tribune newspaper plant. Actual news-writing by the class enhanced the experience of putting out a cub issue in the spring.

Suddenly There Is a Feeling of Frustration

New curricula and teaching aids granted students a varied three-year course. College texts afforded enriched tenth graders structural linguistics and the language communication theory. All sophomores studied various works of recent literature found in the popular pocketbooks.

After emerging from tenth grade, the eleventh graders discovered that English XI imparted the concept of American cultural values and traditions through literature. Faulkner's The Bear and Melville's Billy Budd were an experimental addition to eleventh-grade reading curricula.

After surviving the eleventh grade research paper, twelfth graders found themselves in a new country — England. Senior English attempted to instill an understanding of the English culture. Seeing The Importance of Being Earnest and listening to their classmates singing medieval ballads off key brought a novel spark to English XII.

When There Just Isn't Enough Time To Finish.

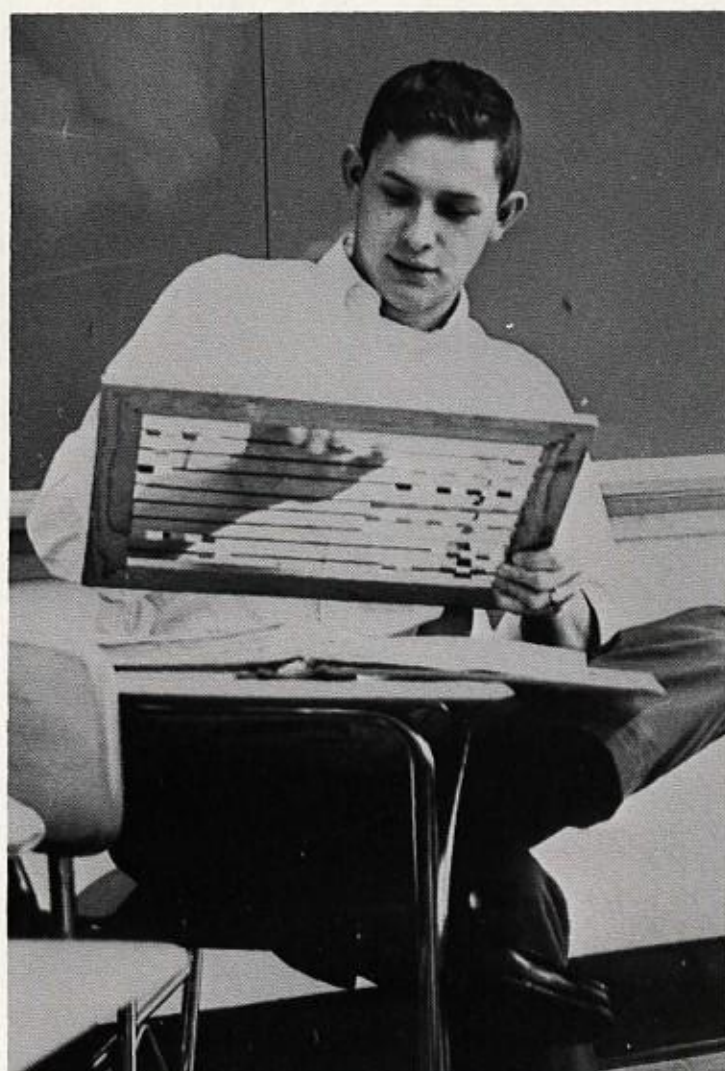

Math is the supreme teacher of logic at Park. A visit by an insurance agent to the Practical Math classes conveyed reality in this study of statistics, insurance, and sound investment. Geometry formulated the basis for rational and deductive thinking within the minds of students.

Math courses also stressed analysis rather than processes. The latest aid new to Advanced Algebra was a textbook which emphasized the structure and the "why" of math rather than the manipulation. The analysis in SMSG XII resulted in providing the thread which tied all forms of math to a common principle.

Through modernization in science, students were better able to comprehend life. Physical Science, the most significant innovation, fulfilled students' general scientific interest. Independent experimental work promoted the new Chemistry process of open-end lab. Throughout the course, students became better acquainted with chemical principles underlying their "daily lives." As in Chemistry, Physics students were constantly conducting novel experiments, such as the balancing of a lead-filled egg. In this most rigorous study of space age and nuclear physics, the course presented basic knowledge of the universe to apply to future life. A revised Biology text, with a new emphasis on biochemistry, air travel, and radiation, enriched the study of living things.

The Need to Understand Others Increases.

Lively projects, language labs, and foreign literature provided novelty in the learning of languages. Cicero, Sallust, and Ovid were familiar classical authors to Latin III discipuli. As in Latin, three years of German offered die Studenten an extension in the study of German culture, past and present. Fluent Russian-speaking Parkites studied Russian through books, movies, magazines, and by attending the Moscow National Circus. Third hour in room 261 found busy fourth year French etudiants putting on plays associated with their study of French literature. Minute mysteries, Spanish broadcasts and commercials, a papier-mache pinata, and language labs similarly enlightened the year for Spanish alumnos.

Thorough Examination of Culture by Students

Leads to Better Understanding of Themselves.

Venturing into the world of speculation, Park's History Department engaged in experimental projects. Team teaching, tried in American History, proved a beneficial time saver for teachers, while giving students a more specialized approach to their course. Accelerated tenth grade students endeavored World History, a traditionally eleventh grade course.

Other courses helped students in their constant struggle for self-awareness. Through Humanities, students acquired an understanding of their relationship to literature and philosophy, using such media as The Great Books, The Age of Reason, and the unforgettable Mortimer J. and his Great Ideas films. Man's affinity with his surroundings underwent great discussion in Geography. Relationships which exist between people were examined in Social Problems to give students a better understanding of themselves.

UPPER LEFT: No matter what shape the class is in, World History discussions are well rounded. BOTTOM: Intellectual Humanities discussions concerning Aristotle's policies on wealth echo in the halls.

Effort Worthwhile.

Park's vocal department offered opportunity to develop and extend students' interest in music. Fifteen students, selected from Band and Choir, composed the Advanced Music class. The class, using college textbooks, studied the history and theory of music, as well as developed ear training. Senior Chorus, composed of 50 senior girls, and Junior Chorus, a preliminary course for Choir, took part in many programs presented by the Choir for the school.

The Choir functioned as both a class and a club. As a class, six weeks to two months was typical preparation for the Christmas concert, featuring The Nutcracker Suite and the Oratorio concert, presenting The Creation. The Choir, as a club, took a spring trip, financed by funds received from selling candy. Also from these funds, as a club project, the choir purchased new risers for future school use.

TOP RIGHT: Singing at Southdale, amidst throngs of people and the splendor of the spectacular Christmas tree, stimulates the Choir with Christmas spirit. LEFT: The audience never realizes the final preparations that go on two minutes before curtain time.

Come on, people! Keep the lines even! Let's start at the beginning again! These words, heard during fourth and sixth hour Band practices, were the first steps leading to perfection in performance. Both Concert and Varsity Band played several types of music ranging from light classics to pops. Individuals took advantage of the chance to participate in competition. Tryouts began at the school level and progressed to State if the student had skill. Yearly trips in April and May, in addition to school and public concerts, developed experience in performance techniques. Participation in the St. Louis Park Music Festival, for the first time in three years, added spark to the varied spring activities.

Aesthetic Courses Create Cultural Interests

BOTTOM RIGHT: Joann Christensen glazes her sculpture in white, though the unpredictable kiln may turn it any color.

Art stressed exploration of students' own creative potentials and an understanding of art works of the past. By combining standard materials in new and different ways, strange and quite remarkable results emerged. This year both the print-making process and lettering received much emphasis. The future artist began studying art history, attending lectures, and making paper masks and linoleum block prints in Art I. As he progressed to Art II, the artist worked on clay, lettering, and sketch books. The Art III student this year made fine pottery, creative paintings, figure sculptures, and wood cuttings as individual projects.

Wet Hair, Sweating Bodies, Aching Muscles —

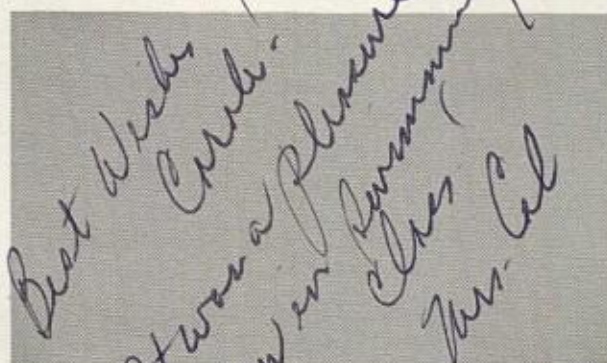

The Physical Education Department attempted to develop physical fitness and positive health habits as well as to teach the rules for various games and sports. Swimmers progressively improved their proficiency during a seven-week course which included swimming skills, water stunts, and safety. Health, also a seven-week course, included units of study in personal hygiene, dental health, and first aid. In the remaining weeks, the students actively participated in tennis, tumbling, basketball, skating, track, and gymnastics.

Office Machines Knowledge and Procedures

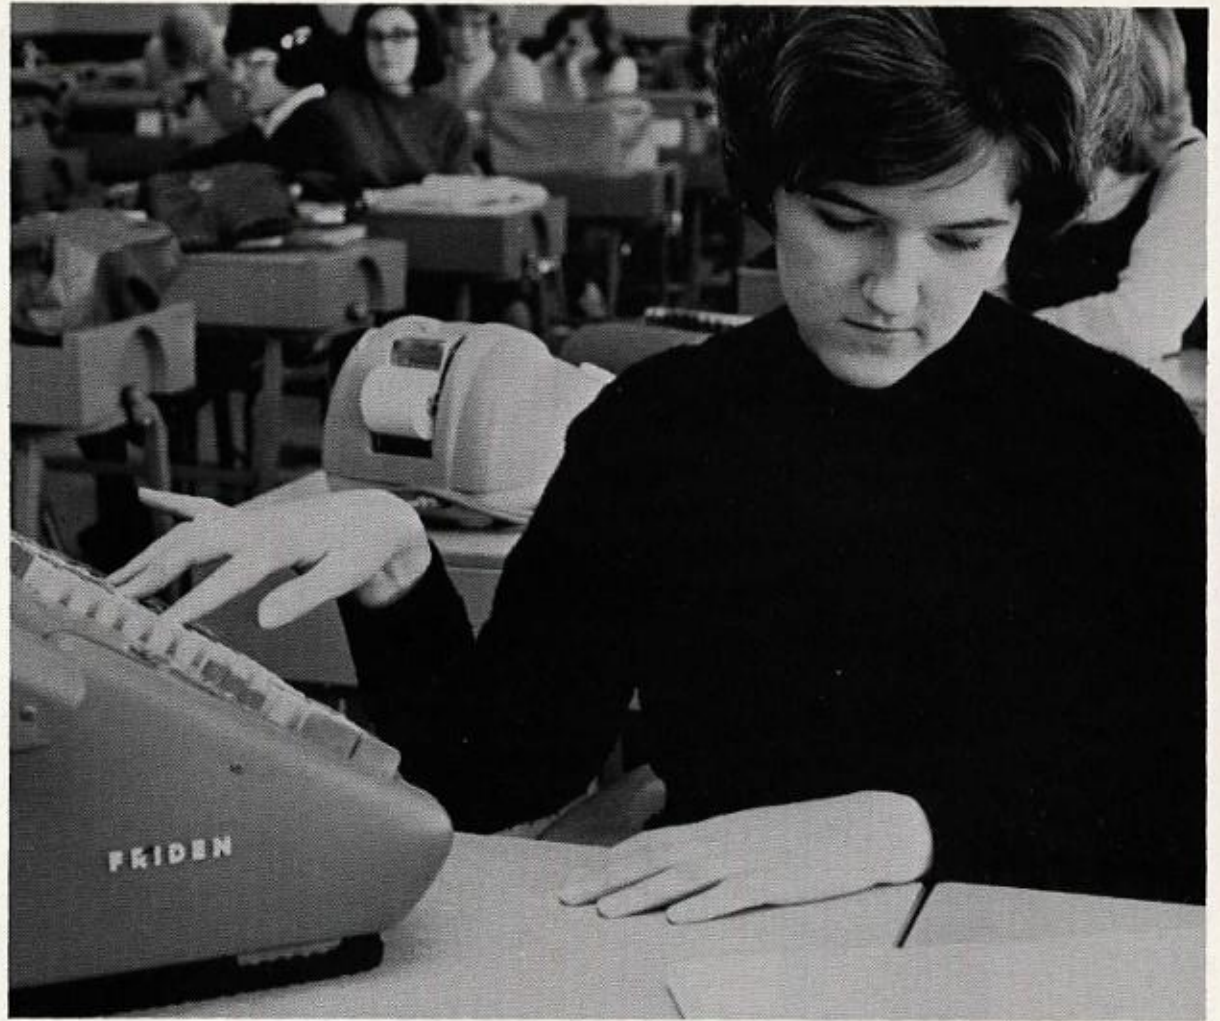

TOP: A trusty typewriter becomes a student's best friend when he desires to butter up his teachers. BOTTOM: Diane Lindberg learns to take accurate shorthand notes in less time than it takes to read this sentence.

Doors to the business world opened for Park students the study of financial and job activities. Typing proved an adequate basis for other courses through the innovation of a text and the skill builder to increase speed. Shorthand also used a skill builder to improve reading skills and force writing speeds. Students who wished to become vocationally proficient in shorthand selected the new accelerated class. Office Practice supplied a basic background in all office procedures. Usability of the various machines and basic understanding of the course received stress, rather than merely a striving for grades. Business Law provided essential background information on the legal position of students and citizens in all business relationships. Bookkeeping developed a better understanding of business, economics, and vocational training. Book lessons proved applicable to recent events such as the Thompson trial.

Resulting From Many Hours of Tedious Labor.

An extensive vocational program supplementing the conventional education for many Park students proved practical in developing future handyman and homemakers. The first plans of industrial arts began in the drafting room. Objects drawn developed from students' imaginations. Woodworking stressed techniques of mass production. Veneering imported woods and working on plastic laminates furnished new experiences for students. Metal work brought the opportunity to learn the basics of the metal trades and then to apply them in making small machine tools. Students also had a chance to work in aluminum and copper spinning and hammering. The teenage girl, who at the beginning of the year couldn't boil an egg or sew a straight seam, transformed into a domesticated girl capable of cooking a seven-course dinner and sewing a Chanel jacket.

TOP: By making this model, Tony Christensen and David Thies begin to understand procedures involved in building an actual house. FAR LEFT: A few pins, a little help, and a great deal of patience transform a piece of material into a fashionable dress.

Variance of Courses Prepares the Individual

A classroom is the nucleus for school learning. Within its walls are the elements which, when combined, form the foundation for education. The teacher is the person introducing the subject, and also the one molding the ideas of students. Stimulating study materials induce the want for learning. By presenting the subject matter in an arousing and thought-provoking way, in an atmosphere conducive to learning, the student is given an extraordinary opportunity for acquiring knowledge. He is aided in his searching for information through these educational influences and through his own endeavors. Thus, from a classroom where a large quantity of information is brought out, the student is allowed to benefit in the way he desires and to utilize this information in his future life.

Committees Enact Student Council Business

During and after school, Council committee members could be seen discussing legislation, preparing posters, and guarding the halls. Each Monday night anyone peeping into 322 would have overheard violent arguments among Rules, Ways and Means members over white-flocked Norway pines. The Cheer and Publicity Committees were busy hanging posters publicizing athletic events and Council activities. Hall and Building students, seen seated throughout the halls, were guarding stairways and lunch lines.

Yearbook Production

To the ECHOWAN staff a year of hard work was a unique experience—the freedom of a sixth hour reserved for creating layouts and copy, the tedious counting of lines and characters, the frantic squeezing of 100 underclass pictures into a two-page spread, and the challenge of envisioning and scheduling pictures. The scene changed from the classroom to college journalism clinics, to nightly vigils at home. But the same fragments of conversation appeared wherever staff members congregated—"I can't see to crop!" "That's the coolest idea!" "Can you alliterate heads like in Beowulf?" "Are you sure I can't get Cliff for Friday?" A year filled with the frustration of nearing deadlines and the anticipation of seeing new pictures climaxed as the staff saw, for the first time, the ECHOWAN in its entirety.

TOP LEFT: Sue Redmond demonstrates the tedious art of cropping pictures to the Academics editors. TOP RIGHT: The Underclass editors register students for ID pictures. Starting the year with the novel asset of an abundant treasury, French Club decided at its first meeting to suspend all dues. With money no object, the group planned an all-French dinner, "Une Soirée dans les Caves de Nancy Korengold," that included broiled snails and crème brûlée. Continuing its talent for the unusual, the club entertained a raccoon at its French hootenanny, rivaling Biology Club in nature study.

Attempting to sample some real German food, German Club members patronized the Heidelberg Inn for an authentic dinner. The Three Penny Opera and a presentation of slides of contemporary Germany introduced members to the culture and life of Deutschland. Celebrating the beginning of Lent in the best German tradition, the group held a Fasching party.

The attitude "when things come around, we go" led Russian Club members to the movie My Name Is Ivan, and to the Moscow Circus where students spoke Russian with the performers after the show.

Spanish Club members traveled to the University to see La Bicicleta, a film helpfully supplied with subtitles. Later in the year they watched slides of life in Brazil.

Travel—to the blood bank, Northern States Power Company, and a research laboratory—typified the activities of the three science clubs. Biologists followed blood from the arm of a donor to the refrigerator where it was stored. Physicists saw the workings of the plant that supplies the city's electrical power, and Chemistry Club members observed research on paints, plastics, and soybean nutrition.

Club members further pursued their scientific curiosity at meetings held bi-monthly. Joint meetings of the three clubs were devoted to speakers and films of interest to all. At sectionals, biology members dissected a rabbit and viewed films on major heart surgery and cancer; physics members completed a digital computer; and chemistry members conducted experiments in problems of measurement and analysis, comparing various methods.

Members of Hi-Y had a myriad of activities from which to choose this year. A movie on drug addiction, a fast game of basketball, and a talk by the Park Juvenile Officer were programs offered by individual chapters. In the fall the boys spent an afternoon of service helping to load trucks for Goodwill Industries. Before and during winter vacation they earned pocket money by selling Christmas trees at Y's-Men's lots around the city. Major money-making projects were the sale of Park spirit buttons and the sponsoring of the Lumberjack Dance during the basketball season.

With an all-school membership meeting, followed by recognition of officers and members, Blue Tri launched a new year of activities. The 23 chapters then met to plan toboggan parties, overnights, visits to rest homes, feet-painting, and joints. Blue Tri calendars, sold by all members, appeared in September, but soon lost their new look as vacations were longingly outlined in red and personal notes filled the squares. November brought the Sadie Hawkins Dance with its unforgettable collection of pigtailed and corn-cob pipes, while January saw sportsmen of both sexes come together as Blue Tri and Hi-Y merged for Co-Rec Night. Spring proved to be an exciting season as it witnessed nervous models at the style show and anxious candidates at the election.

Y-Teen Activities Offer Welcome Relaxation

Sponsored by the Y-Clubs, Sadie, Co-Rec Night, and Lumberjack Day added variation to the school's social activities. Dogpatch characters invaded the Sadie Hawkins Dance and were joined in matrimony by Marryin' Sam, alias Peter Ringsrud. At Co-Rec, Blue Tri, and Hi-Y members took part in square dancing, swimming, and gymnastics. Bristling beards appeared in the halls during the weeks previous to the Lumberjack Dance as boys earnestly prepared for the longest and most-hand-some beard competition.

FTA, Math, and Art Serve Students' Interests

The newly formed FTA heard Lyle Gerard relate his teaching experiences in Holland and invited student teachers to discuss education courses. In November delegates attended an FTA convention in Edina to discuss career opportunities.

Another new club, Math Club, began the year with a mathematical puzzle contest. Speakers on surveying, computers, and space curves introduced members to some of the fields open to mathematics majors as potential careers.

With proceeds from Christmas cards made and sold in the fall, Art Club rented movies on the works of Michaelangelo and Grandma Moses. During informal meetings members experimented in fingerpainting and sketching.

Dedicated Ski Club members spent the winter planning trips and then praying fervently for snow, skiing at Telemark and Inglewood, and acting as volunteer members of the Cedar Hills ski patrol. Meetings at school were devoted to speakers and films on ski lessons, available areas, and rudimentary techniques.

A volleyball tournament at the College of St. Catherine, softball, tennis, and swimming were all an integral part of the GAA program. Sophomores were given points for each activity they attended, and the most active members received letters and pins at the awards banquet held in the spring of the year.

Proficiency Nurtured Through YIP and Chess

Constitutional government ruled at YIP meetings this year after the club's first constitution was approved. The group, designed to give youth interested in politics a better understanding of current affairs, met to discuss politics and government. Members heard a speech by Conservative Party spokesman Lee Clausen and attended a United Nations Forum at Aldersgate Methodist Church.

A patient confined to an iron lung at the Kenny Institute matched wits with Chess Club members who visited him for weekly games. In addition to helping someone else, the boys improved their own skills by analyzing games from chess history. The experience produced keen competition for trophies awarded at the end of the year's round-robin tournament.

Guiding new students through the labyrinth of halls known as St. Louis Park Senior High School was only one part of the responsibility a student undertook as a member of the Welcome Club. He explained to the uninitiated the art of buying lunch tickets at the rare moments of decongestion and the skill of remembering to purchase game tickets before it was necessary to pay the full dollar. Introduction to teachers and students completed the club member's responsibility to his newly enlightened charge.

Marred only by the presence of a semi-vicious dog, a nearly perfect picnic opened the year for the AFS Club and introduced the foreign exchange students to Park. The club met informally in homes for the majority of its meetings to provide an atmosphere of friendship. Speaking at one of its monthly meetings, Miss Joan Fontanilla generated enthusiasm for European tours by vividly describing life in Russia, Spain, Italy, and France. A spring farewell party in honor of the exchange students ended the year.

Red Cross, Library Create International Theme

A new globe brightened the library's interior as a result of Library Club's paperback sales. Contributing a minimum of two hours per week to the library, students helped in filing, checking out materials, and preparing bulletin boards. As a reward for working, the club members received their choice of a paperback at the spring recognition party.

This year International Red Cross became truly international. A Polish Red Cross group sent pictures and descriptions of their work to Park. The local chapter reciprocated with an album explaining visits to nursing homes, publicity posters and showcases, and food baskets delivered at Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter to indigent families.

Canteen, Concessions Offer Dance and Food

Early Saturday mornings, three times a year, valiant Canteen workers were seen trudging into the school. They came to hang crepe paper and mistletoe, to set up palm trees and platforms for the dances. People could be seen running from the school to buy tape, and more tape, and still more tape.

Equally valiant Concession workers could be seen trudging to the games, eagerly looking forward to selling and eating popcorn. At half-time a barrage of nickels and dimes greeted them, as pop slopped over their arms on to sticky slacks. Feeling grubby, full, and tired, they left their crowded shelter.

Parkettes Plan For Summer European Trip

Individual jobs, ranging from work in a pudding factory to babysitting, were combined with efforts of the Parkette Parent Committee and dancing of the Parkettes to finance the girls' trip to Europe in the summer of 1964. Twice-weekly rehearsals gave the Parkettes the precision needed when they danced at a Vikings game or the St. Paul Winter Carnival, as well as at many school games and pep fests, earning their viewers' respect.

Hard Work Brings Perfected Performances

Fifteen minutes of vigorous exercise, often punctuated with giggles at the sound of a groan or the cracking of a reluctant knee, began each practice for the Surf Belles. Warm-ups were concluded by swimming 12 lengths of the pool. In condition at last, the group learned new stunts and strokes or worked on musical arrangements. In preparation for the spring show and in defense of their title at the state synchronized swimming competition, many Surf Belles spent hours working out routines and designing their own numbers.

Park Cheerleaders Experience Eventful Year

To a layman, the gold megaphone pinned to a cheerleader's letter has little significance, but to the wearer it recalls a year of memories. The eventful year began last spring when the selection was announced. One girl, clothed only in a towel, was surprised by the then senior cheerleaders as they jumped out of her closet, singing the initiation song which made the selection official.

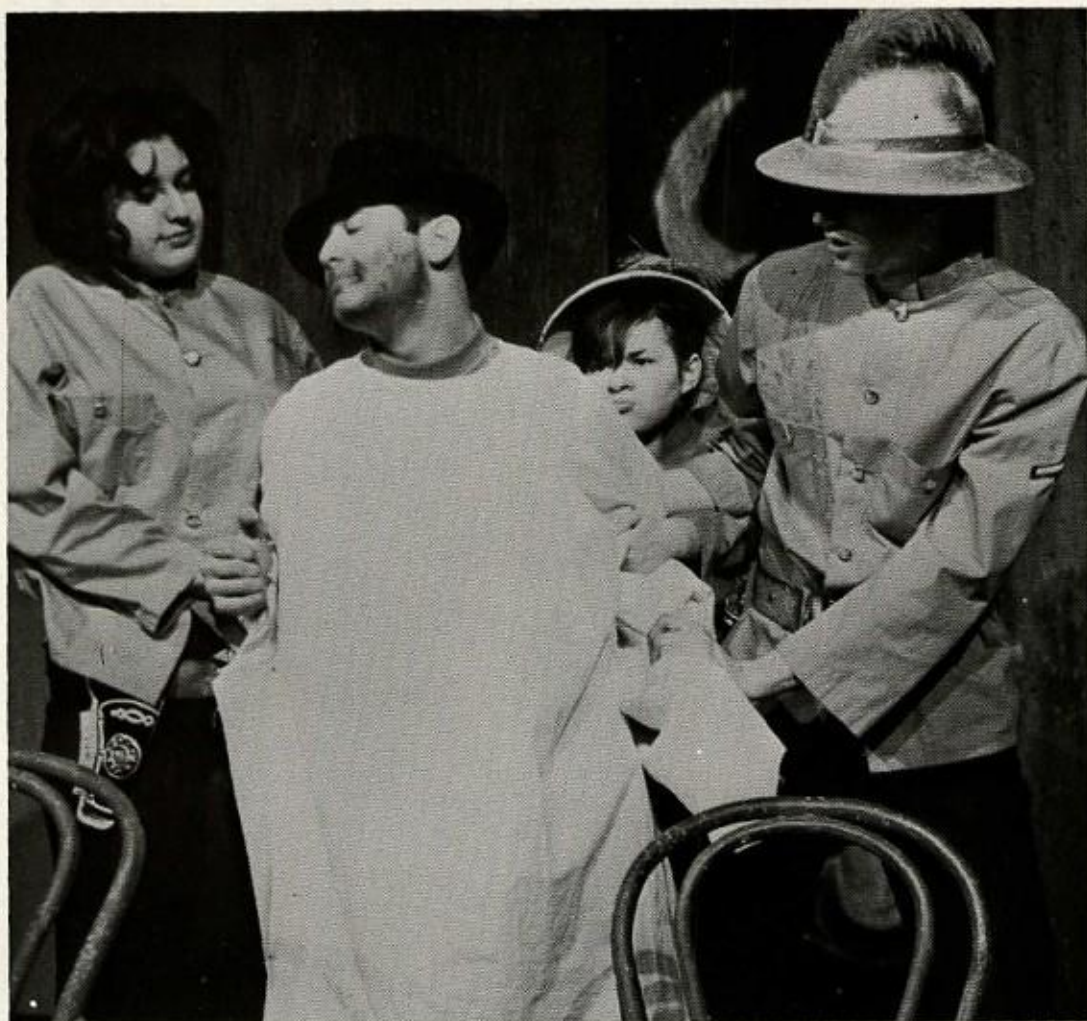

The magic of that first night turned into the reality of hard practices, endless weeks filled with many games, and nights of wind-blown hair and cold hands. Getting to games presented a particular problem as the driver had to wait patiently five minutes for each girl to add the last dash of hair spray and to slip on a coat.

One-Act Rates 'A' in District Competition

Led by a prop-laden truck and carrying nine weirdly made-up students, a cavalcade of cars carried the one-act play cast to the District Contest in Richfield. Judging by three professors of the theater culminated weeks of hectic rehearsals, judo fights, and clumsy manipulations of angel costumes. The play received an "A" rating among the comedies entered and Dick Shapiro was named best District actor.

This year's debaters never anticipated the experiences they would have in speech. There were vowel exercises before each debate—"If the track team can have warm-up exercises, so can we!"; raffles to determine who would keep a new trophy overnight before it was placed in the trophy case; and the traffic tickets collected between Minneapolis and St. Cloud. The team took first place in the Hastings Invitational Meet and second place in the Cokato Meet, at which they debated the national topic, "Resolved: Social Security should be extended to include complete medical care."

Participants in declam improved their techniques by preparing selections in eight categories and presenting them at a round-robin tournament where they were criticized by speech experts. Hard work in fields including original oratory, discussion, extemporaneous reading, and story telling was brought to fruition at the District, Regional, and NFL Contests in April.

Class of 1966 Revives

For the first time in five years sophomores presented a class play. Long, rigorous rehearsals, neglected homework, "hanky-panky," and wild dart games became an integral part of high school memories for the worn-but-rewarded students who produced The Curious Savage.

Excitement sparked weeks preceding the play when Lloyd Alwin, business manager, agreed to be thrown into the pool fully clothed if 2,000 tickets were sold. Although the goal wasn't reached, signed copies of Mr. Alwin's promise, found on every available wall and post, added impetus to ticket selling.

Masters Problems

A hush fell over the audience on February 27; the cast and crew of Arms and the Man breathed a sigh of relief. Thoughts flew back two weeks to the day that rumors had circulated throughout the school: "Did you hear that the lead in the play has mono?" Desolation turned to renewed hope when the auditorium was rescheduled and a new girl was found to fill the vacated position two weeks before opening night.

Seeing the huge conspicuous arch, the crew was reminded of the past Christmas vacation. Workers reflected on their tired legs bespeckled with "earthy" colors and bloodshot eyes developed while outlining bricks. As the group took one last glimpse of the troublesome tablecloth and the officer's pants which had ripped when its occupant sat down to rest, the curtain closed.

As the days of October 17 and 18 drew near, MacDonald's felt a surge of business while a near-constant stream of pseudo-Greeks abandoned the mighty pillars of Thebes for the pungent doors in search of nourishment. Those two days marked the end of the long production period of the two Senior Class plays.

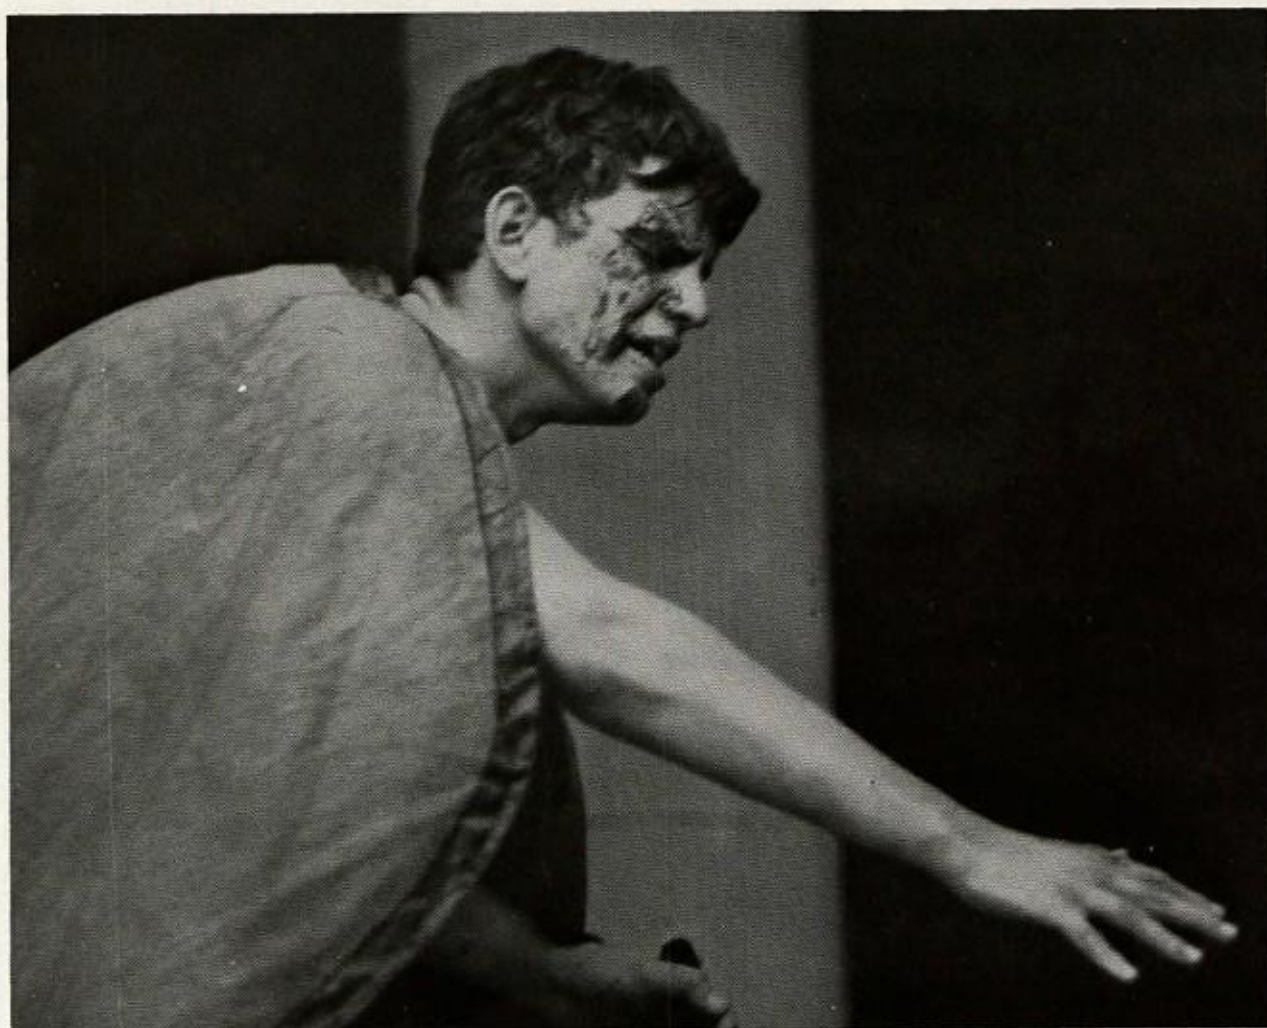

Oedipus the King, the major play, provided new experiences for both the cast and the crew. Members of the chorus were easily spotted as they moved about the halls slightly self-conscious about their suddenly jet-black hair, of which their only complaint was "it itches." Working wonders, the make-up crew forced "outsiders" to guess who were the mystery people beneath the beards and layers of Max Factor.

Acting as a balance to the tragedy of Oedipus was The First Mrs. Paris. Its highlights included the time a dedicated crew member dashed home minutes before curtain time to furnish some necessary wastebaskets, and the laughing fit that overcame several of the actors in the Thursday-night performance.

Park a 4-3-1 Record Against Top State Teams

A group of determined athletes, willing to work hard and try to succeed, is probably the best definition of the Oriole football squad this year. Team unity, coupled with tough backfield blocking and a sudden improvement of the line, brought many a fan to the edge of his seat while watching some of the best battles ever fought in Lake Conference action.

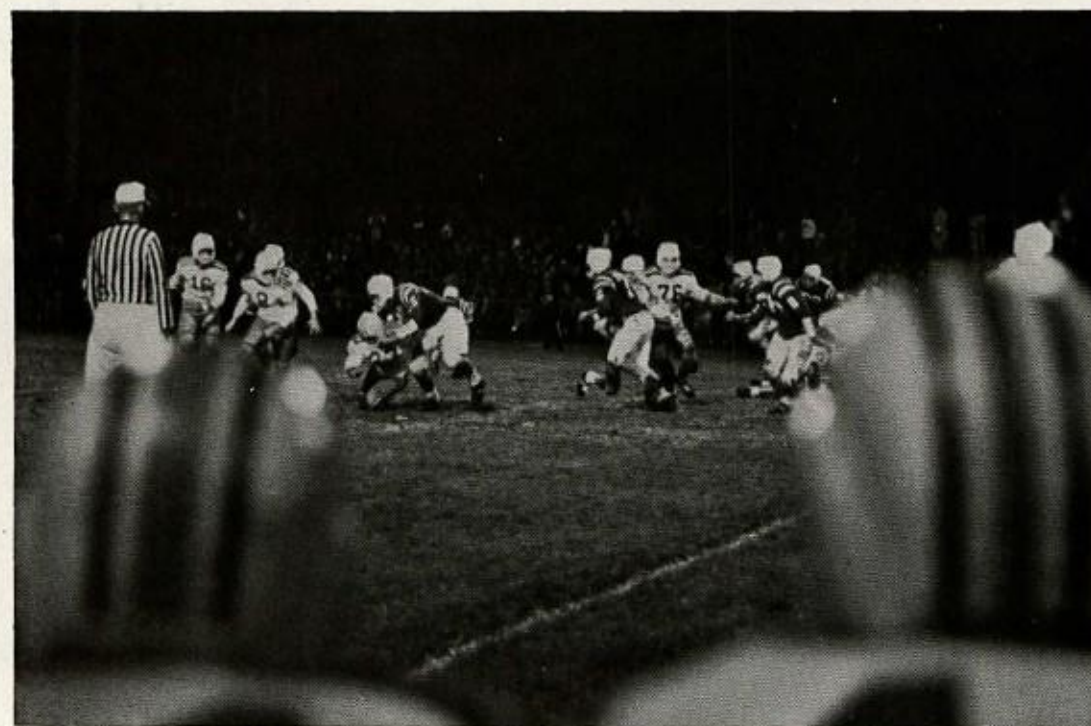

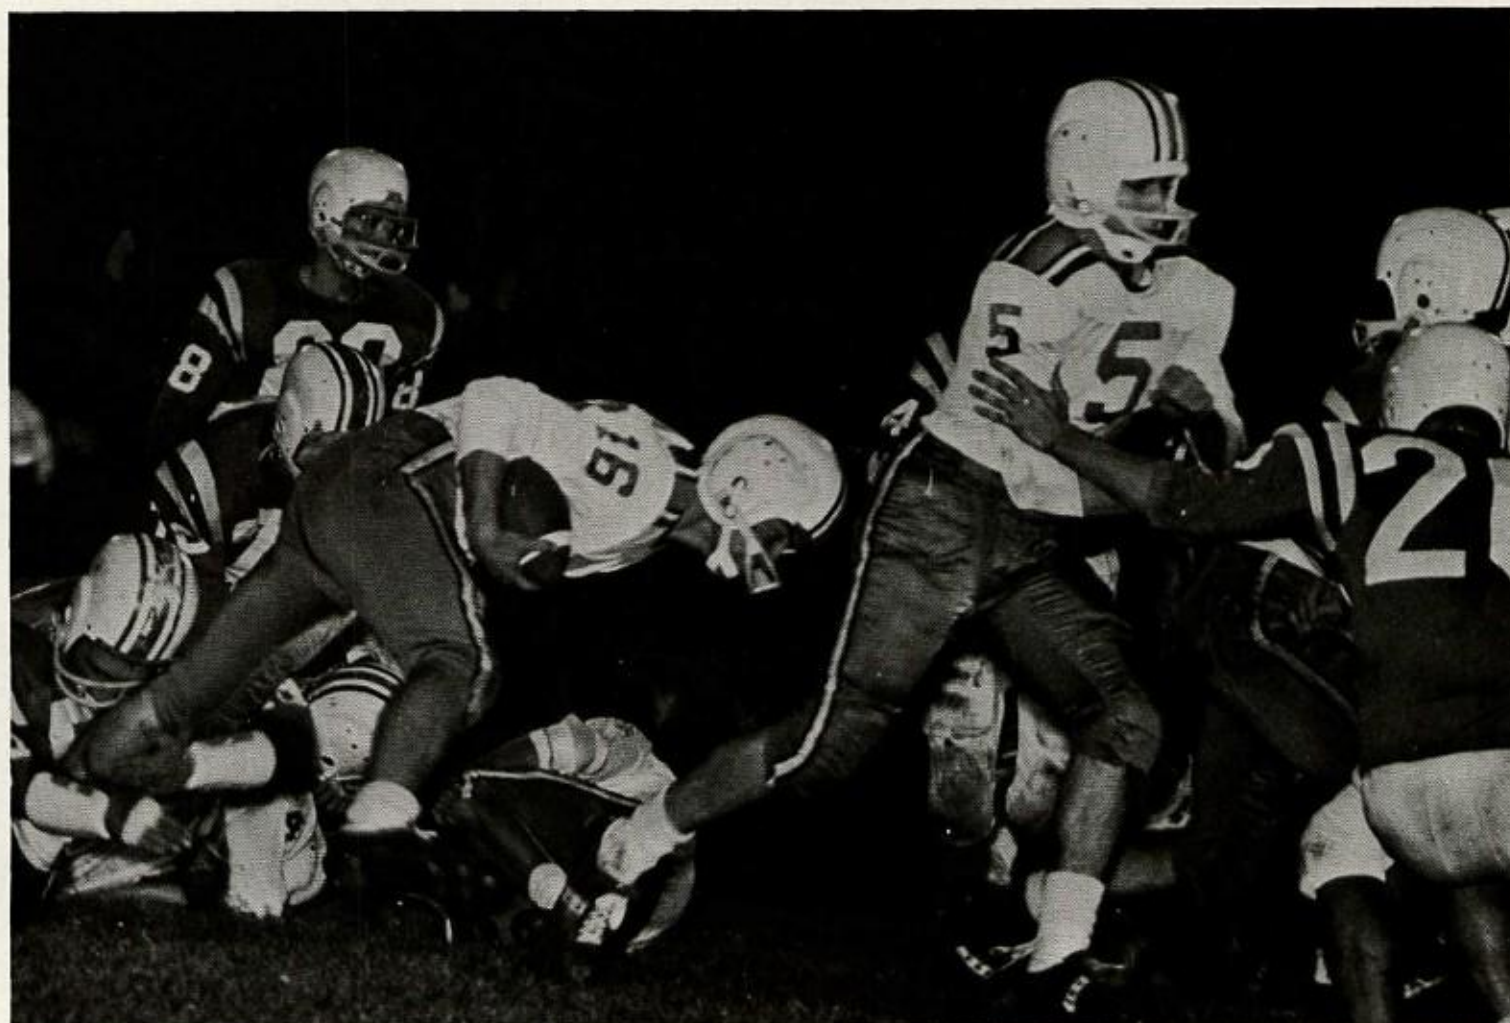

Several Orioles have been indispensable in Coach Roy's strategy. Outstanding were Mike Nelson, a respected tackle and punter, who averaged 33.7 yards per punt, and a much-improved Steve Feinstein, who showed Park opponents what an asset an option-running quarterback and fine rusher can be.

The Orioles finished fourth in Lake Conference standings. They started their season off with a 12-26 loss to a tough Edina team. By unleashing a barrage of 34 points they took one of the top-rated South Dakota teams, Sioux Falls Gorham, 34-12. Next the team took Mound and Wayzata 14-13, 32-14, but were stopped by Hopkins 20-6, and tied Bloomington 13-13. They then went on to defeat Minnetonka 7-6. In the final match of the season the Orioles tenaciously held the number one Lake Conference team, the Richfield Spartans, down to a 12 point lead.

CC Snares Second in State and Sets New Mark

Co-captains Brudevold and Gale pound their way over the last feet of the race.

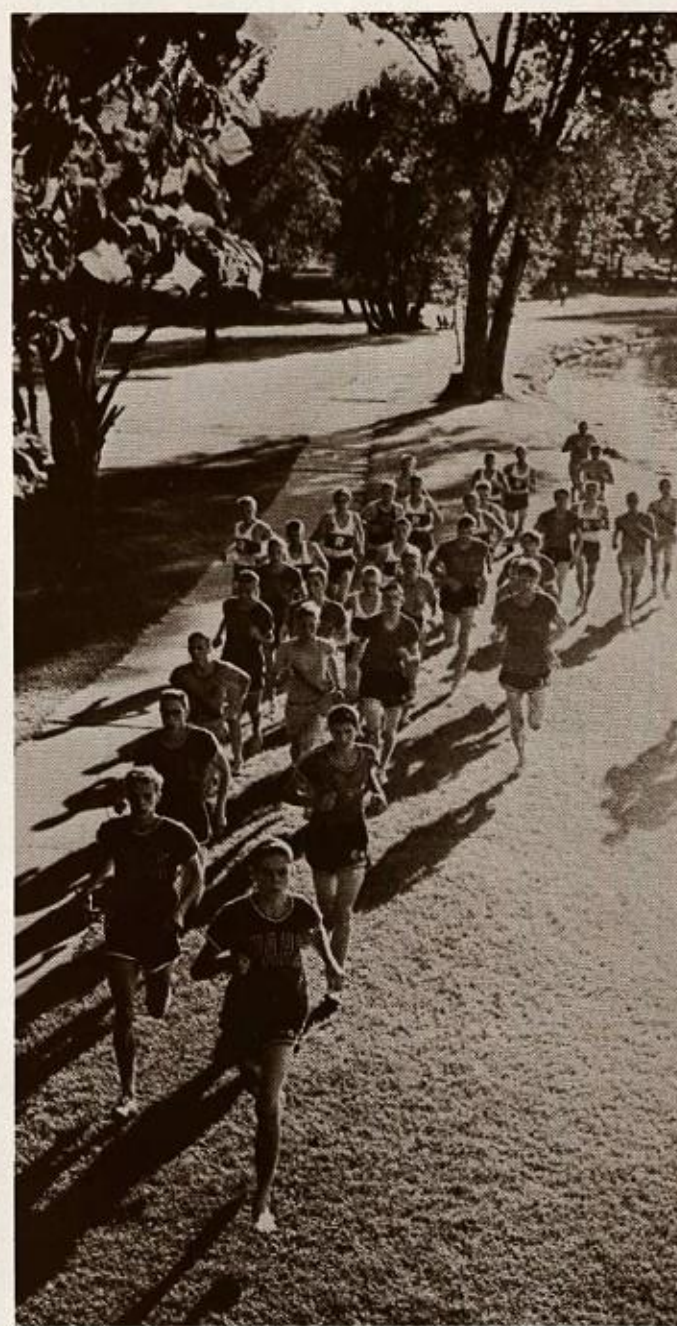

Culminating the 1963 season for Park's cross country team was Wagner's new state mark of 8:36.0, an incredible 12 seconds off the old record for the 1.8 mile Nokomis course. The team as a whole finished second (79-71) in the record-breaking meet. From August to October the team worked under Coaches Wright and Bies, building the stamina demanded of them, often doing 100 miles of road work every week. Their efforts produced a dual meet record of only one loss to a top Osseo squad. But the harriers continued on to take the Conference, District, and Region crowns; finishing second at State. Augmenting Wagner's undefeated record for the 1963 harriers were Bob Neumer, Keith Brudevold, Rick Gale, Scott Rattet, and Buzz Mandel, who all placed in the upper ten of Park's cross country history.

Cagers Tie for Fourth Place in Lake Loop

The throbbing excitement of overtime, the defeat of traditional rivals, and a well-earned pride in a top basketball team were the tributes of the '64 Oriole basketball squad to Parkites. Park-famous balanced scoring and an aggressive dominance of the boards were the prime factors in the victories of the 8-8 season. In the first round of play, Oriole power prevailed against four of its rivals, including a thrilling (52-50) victory over Robbinsdale. In the second round, Park succeeded in conquering second-place Hopkins (39-36) in its string of four wins. District play again sparked Oriole prowess in a 14-point streak in the last two minutes of a victory over University High, but they finally fell to the champion Hornets, despite a first-half lead.

Constructed under the skill of Coach Lloyd Holm, the '64 Orioles were a well-balanced team. Bob Olson and Tri-Captains Bill Hill, Ken Sandstad, and Steve Feinstein were the top scorers, led by Hill.

Sandstad, Hill and Olson were named All-Conference with top rebounder Sandstad in first string. The remainder of the young squad, notably Bob Stein and Stan Veker, rounded out the "balance of power" of the '64 Orioles with consistently good performances.

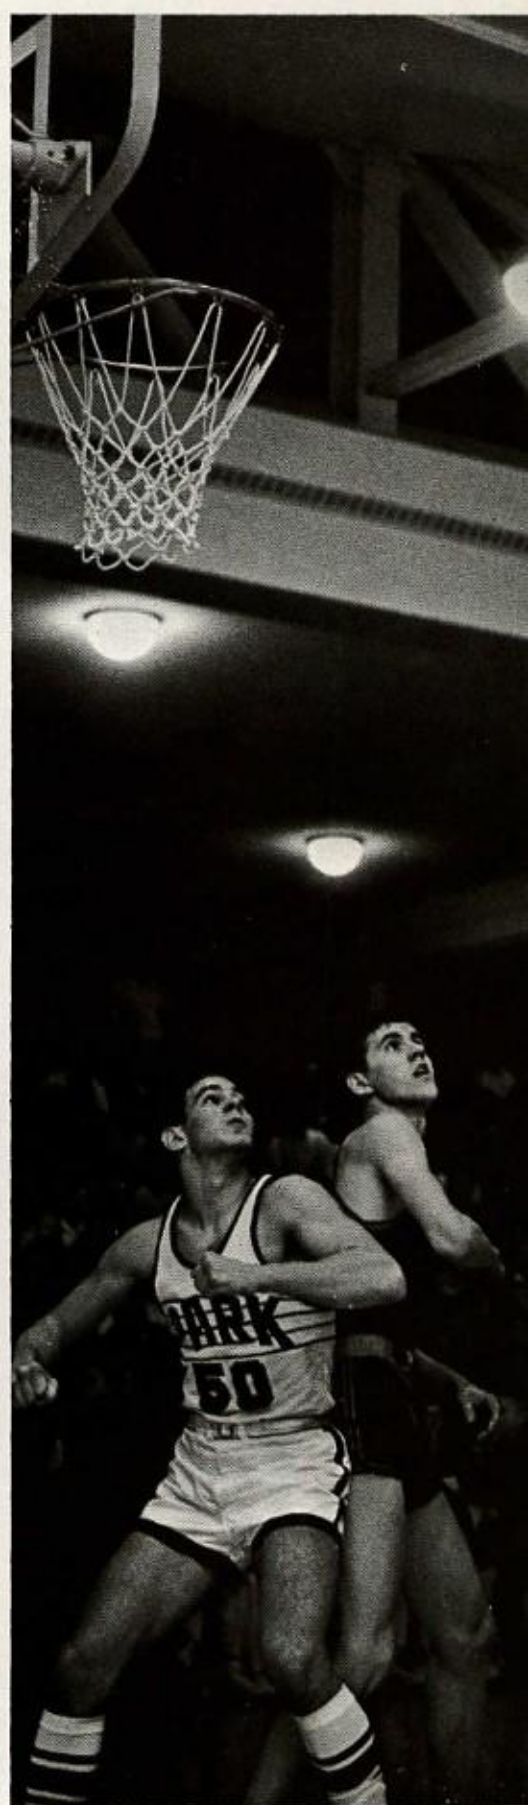

Coaches Lloyd Holm and Wes Bodin analyze Oriole strategy and play.

Placing fifth in the State and setting two new State records were the final victories of another good swimming season for the Oriole mermen. Under the guidance of the new coach, Robert Erickson, and his assistant, Richard Williams, the team compiled a record of six and six against the top teams in the state. Proceeding to the tough District competition, Park took third and placed fifth in the State, only one point from the fourth-place Robins.

Led by Co-Captains Bill Walz and Wally Shanks, the Oriole swimming team displayed an impressive array of talent during the '64 season. This was especially evident at the State Meet. At this meet, junior Tom Zanna set one of the most sensational records in prep swim history by a new State mark and tie of the Cooke Hall record of collegiate competition with his time of 1:03.8 in the 100-yard breaststroke. Also setting a new State mark was the 200-yard medley relay team of Jim O'Connor, Tom Zanna, David Shapley, and Kent Quackenbush with its time of 1:44.6. During the regular season of competition, new team records were also set by senior Jim O'Connor in the backstroke and junior David Shapley in the 100-yard butterfly. Many other team members contributed in a variety of ways to make 1964 another good year for the Oriole swimming team.

Although encountering a heartbreaking season this year, the '64 hockey squad provided a round of closely fought and exciting games. The Lake Conference was in championship form again, resulting in four wins, four ties, and six losses for the Orioles. Although coming out on the short end of a few contests, Park's punch came to life often, as in the ten-point pounding of Mound. The pucksters also compiled a very respectable seasonal average of netting two points per game while surrendering only three points. After disappointing Conference play, the Orioles advanced into the Region with a rebirth of power, but they were stopped by Edina in the final moments of another tight contest.

Returning lettermen Tom Kane and Rick Johnson captained the hockey squad through the tough '64 season. Under the experienced guidance of Coach Pete Zanna, the team fought with stubborn ability. Tying for top honors in scoring were Rick Sorenson and Roger Lindquist with nine goals and eight assists apiece. Another outstanding member was goalie Steve Burke, who played a good season.

Many hours of hard practice paid off for the Oriole ski team as it joined the ranks of State Champions by securing fourth place in the State for the 1964 season. This feat is even more incredible because this was its first season of League, Region, and State competition. The members indicated their dedication to the sport by forming the team themselves.

The team claimed many outstanding members. Tom Anderson was not only a top cross country man but an excellent slalom skier. In jumping, Keith Peterson surpassed many existing records with such spectacular jumps as 86 and 84 feet. In State cross country competition, Jim Reuter and Dick Krier came up with noticeable time of 34.56 and 35.10, respectively. Perhaps the most exciting slalom skiers in this area were Tom Jakobsson and Stan Geyer, who ended his season with a third in the State Meet.

With the experienced help of Coach Jack Willhite, the '64 wrestling team fought its way through another tough season and again came out in good standing. Especially notable were the Park Invitational, where the Orioles placed first, and the victory over Hopkins, fourth in State. Through the remainder of Conference competition, the team built a 10-2-1 record, placing it second. After finishing third in both District and Region, the grapplers sent Bill Clemmens, Ira Rosen and Bruce Smith to State, where Clemmens fought to third place.

Headed by Captain Berg at 154, the Oriole wrestlers presented a tough squad of Johnson—98, Cook—103, Matsumoto—115, Clemmens—120, Muir—127, Weisman—133, Crawford—138, J. Smith—145, Rosen—165, B. With Enthusiasm, Laughter, and High Spirits

Homecoming became a reality on September 27. The months of planning resulted in two weeks of festivities centering around the return of the alumni for the football game. At the introductory pep fest, the queen candidates and Ladies of the Court, chosen by the Senior Class, were named. While they were busy with coronation details, their fellow Parkites built floats, attended the Varsity Show, blew up balloons, and sold buttons.

At this year's coronation, the queen candidates and Ladies of the Court wore long gowns. This innovation added a certain grace and elegance to one of Homecoming's oldest traditions. The gymnasium was darkened and in the background the organist softly played "Pomp and Circumstance." The silence of the audience, a rarity with Park's usually boisterous crowds, reflected the dignity of the moment. Only their murmurs of approval greeted each girl as she made her appearance.

Each a Queen in Her Own Way,

The problem in choosing a queen is that each candidate possesses a special queenly quality. This quality is each girl's own blend of vivacity, wit, poise, graciousness, charm, and beauty. The Queen's Attendants

This year Park witnessed its first Homecoming parade through the city. The procession allowed bystanders to view the queens and homeroom floats. If they missed seeing any of these, they had a second chance at the pre-game parade at the football field. The main feature of these two parades—the floats—added color and excitement to the game. The traditional dance provided the atmosphere to celebrate the victory of the football team and enjoy the last hours of Homecoming.

First Place Goes to Confetti-Spouting Whale

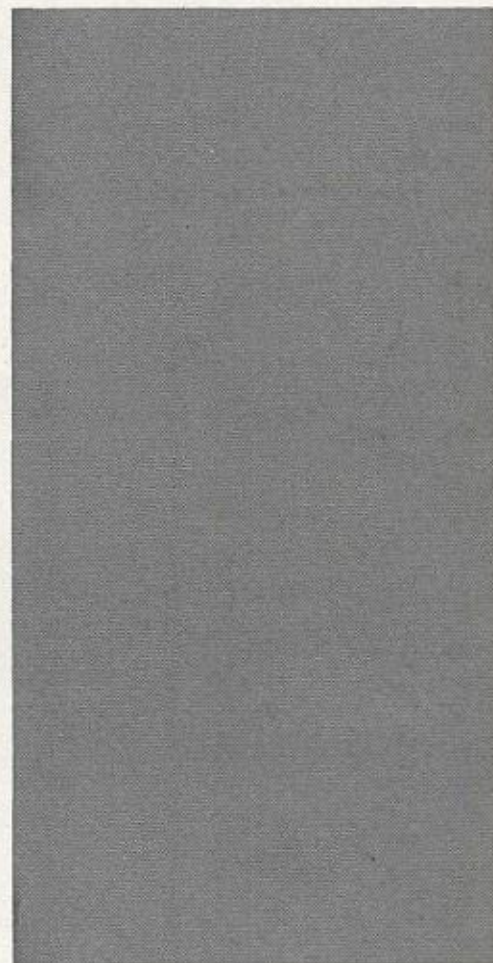

Pep fests survived the apathy of many as they presented their own variety of humor and spirit. A pie-throwing slapstick and an advertisement for the "Hannukah Hop" were both received uproariously. A favorite skit was "Bleach White and the Seven Surfers," a modern version of an old story. At the pep fest George Olsen led, even boys cheered.

Projects Generate Good Will Among Parkites

School-sponsored projects provided several results, ranging from money to simply good will. During the fall, Slave Day, directed by Maxine Benjamin and Bob Harada, raised $2,000 for AFS students.

Christmas spirit spurred many winter projects. A gym class raised funds for a CARE package; the Sophomore Enriched English students gave a party for needy Negro children; and the Senior Enriched English classes passed on to underclassmen the tradition of giving Cambridge patients a Christmas.

For AFS Students, Slave Day Profits Provide

152

Half of last year's Slave Day money brought Erik Thomas Jakobsson to Park. With a new school and family—Gregg Hickey's—Tom began to learn about America. He joined school activities: Ski Club, Student Council, and Hi-Y. However, activities were not new to Tom. At home in Sweden he belonged to ski clubs, athletic clubs, and was president of his school's Student Council for two years. His natural leadership, wit, and friendliness soon found him his place at St. Louis Park.

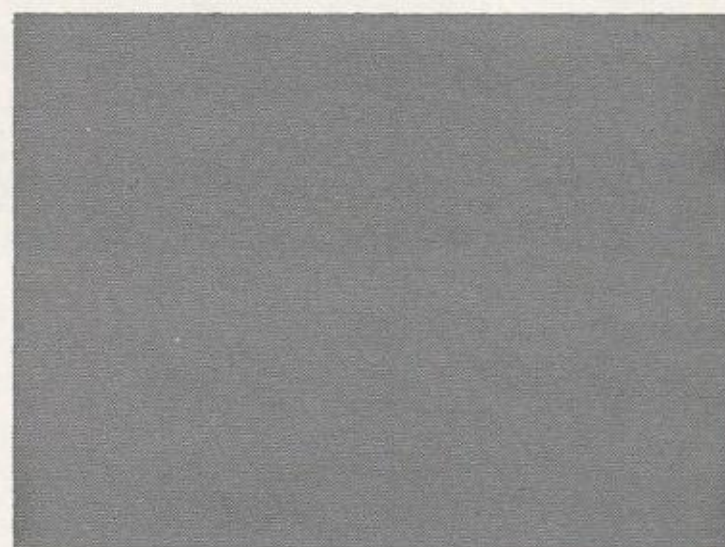

Late this summer Dana Eckers welcomed a new sister into her home—Elisa Loreto of the Philippines. Before coming to America, Elisa was secretary of the Student Council; editor of the school paper, the Bataan; Mayor of the Class for three years; and vice president of the Girl Scouts. This year she added participation in Blue Tri and AFS Club to her list of school accomplishments. Parkites will also remember Elisa as a poised and charming Lady of the Homecoming Court.

With unquestioned regularity, Friday night football and basketball home games are followed by a dance in the cafeteria. Here Parkites congregate to discuss the game, to dance, or to see who is there. Other than stricter I.D. card regulations, dances this year varied little from those in the past. Sometimes a band replaced the usual records; sometimes folk group records were featured. It was the informality and simplicity of these dances that attracted Parkites who wished to unwind and enjoy themselves after a long week and an exciting game.

Producing Play Involves Unseen Workers

The smoothly running scene that appeared as the curtain rose on L'il Abner, Park's spring play, did not develop overnight. The preceding weeks had been a tumult of rehearsing, painting, hammering, building, and sewing. Yet, even before the actual work on the play could begin, plans had to be made. The cast was chosen and organized, costumes were designed, and publicity was started. Thus it was this early planning that was really responsible for the casual, carefree appearance of the Dogpatchers on opening night in April.

Student Council, assisted by Canteen, provided Park's first Winter Week. On Snow Day (Lincoln's Birthday), Parkites moved to Camp Iduhapi for winter activities, food, and fun. The Snow King and Queen, representing the hockey team, were crowned at Friday's pep fest. Canteen's A-ball, the "Battle of the Bands," on Saturday night rounded out the week with two jazz and two rock-and-roll bands competing for popularity.

Students Develop Their Individuality During

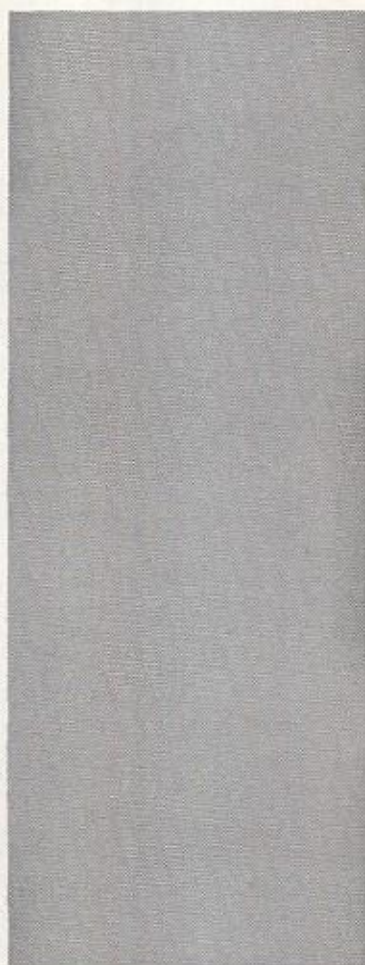

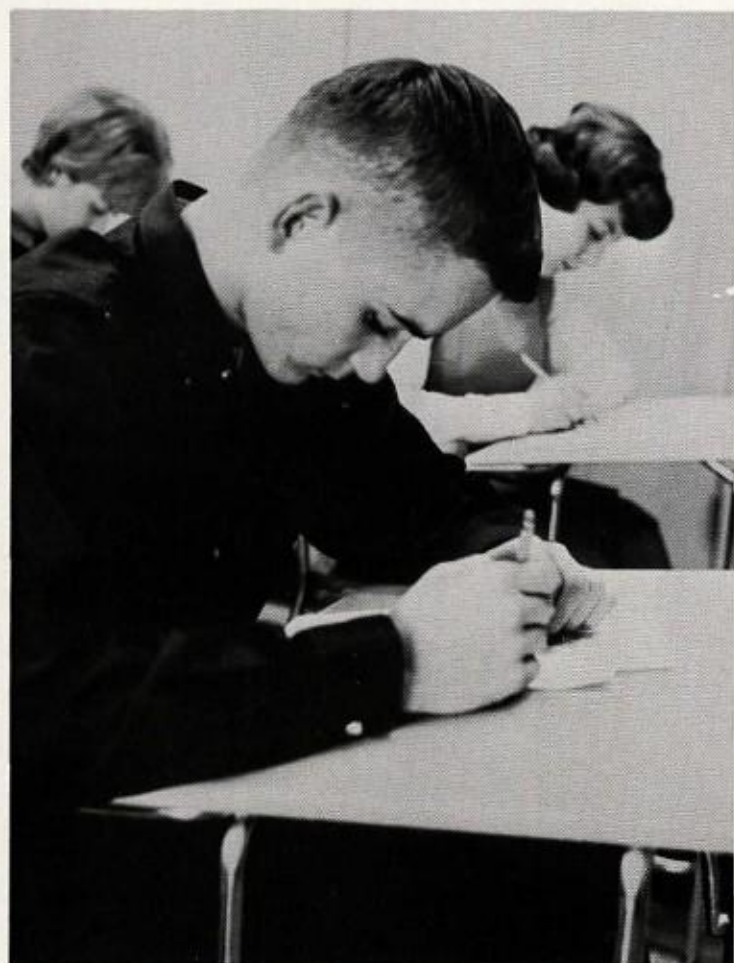

This school year was one of events, individuals, and milestones. The events included pep fests and class plays. The individuals were the basketball stars, the queens, the boy behind you in history, and the girl next to you in math. The milestones, comical or tragic, ranged from closed-lunch hours to the assassination of our country's President. Orientation Day arrived and 790 Sophomores filled the halls of Park High. In order to become a part of their new environment, they had to adjust to a larger school and greater responsibilities. Soon the Class of '66 engrossed itself in the academic and extracurricular activities with all the power of a unified class. By choosing energetic leadership in officers, Sophomore Board, and the Student Council, the class worked to accomplish its goals.

Among the most important of Sophomore Class activities was its production of the Curious Savage. The Sophomore Board worked unceasingly for a successful play. Hurried trips to MacDonald's between scene rehearsals and the frustration of opening night helped to orient the Class of '66 to high school life and a new phase of education.

Unified Sophomores

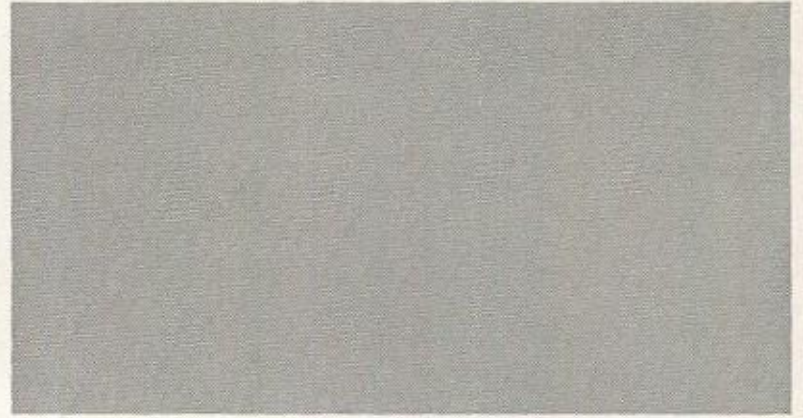

Successfully Introduce the 'Curious Savage.' ¹⁷⁷

Earnest Juniors

Distinct not only in size, but also in accomplishments was the Class of '65. With an enrollment of 828, this class was the largest in the history of the school. Individual success in cross country, football, and basketball characterized the ambitions of its members in sports. The interest displayed by the multitudes of juniors who took the PSAT's demonstrated a concern for academic achievement. Their leaders were also able organizers of Homecoming, Slave Day, and the Port Washington Exchange Program.

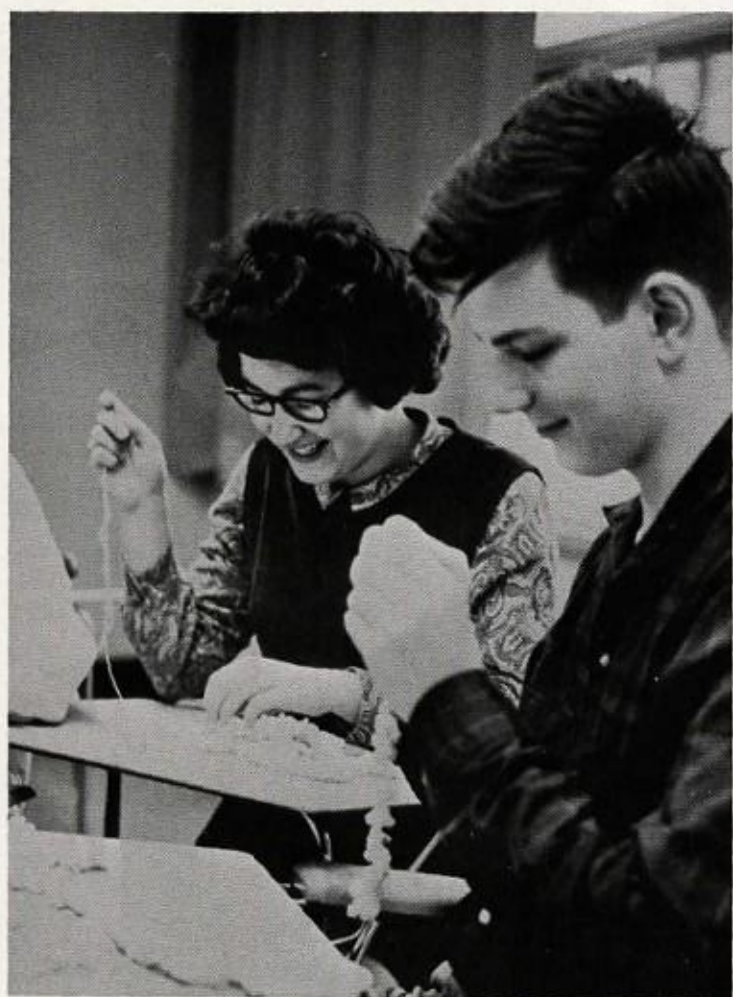

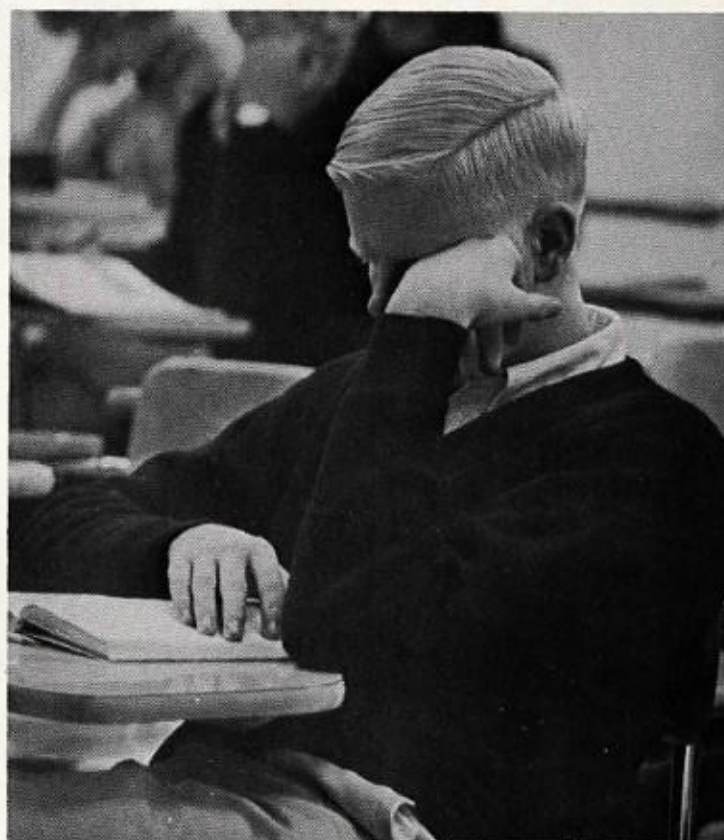

The year was off to a good start with the selection of a capable Junior Board. These students arranged the purchase of hourglass-shaped rings to represent their class. The annual Homecoming Dance, "Northern Lights", an after-game dance, Arms and the Man, and a majestic Prom were also effectively planned, promoting Junior Class unity.

Junior Board members are G. Andresen, L. Barber, C. Berlien, P. Bach, J. Broughton, M. Burger, C. Cheese, G. Crawford, R. Dale, C. Dearing, T. Fitzgerald, M. Frantz, D. French, K. Fujino, P. Expand To Improve Individual Personalities.

What kind of magazines do you read? What are your hobbies? Do you readily participate in extra-curricular activities? These are a few of the questions asked of AFS applicants during the weeks of selecting Park's semi-finalists. Personal responses found in frustrating themes helped to answer these probes. Since friendliness and adaptability to unusual situations characterized the typical AFS student, leaders of the Junior Class met in closed-door conference sessions to evaluate each of the perspective AFS'ers. Faculty members analyzed the academic achievement of these students. Finally, by personal interviews, the AFS Committee selected the three finalists.

SENIORS

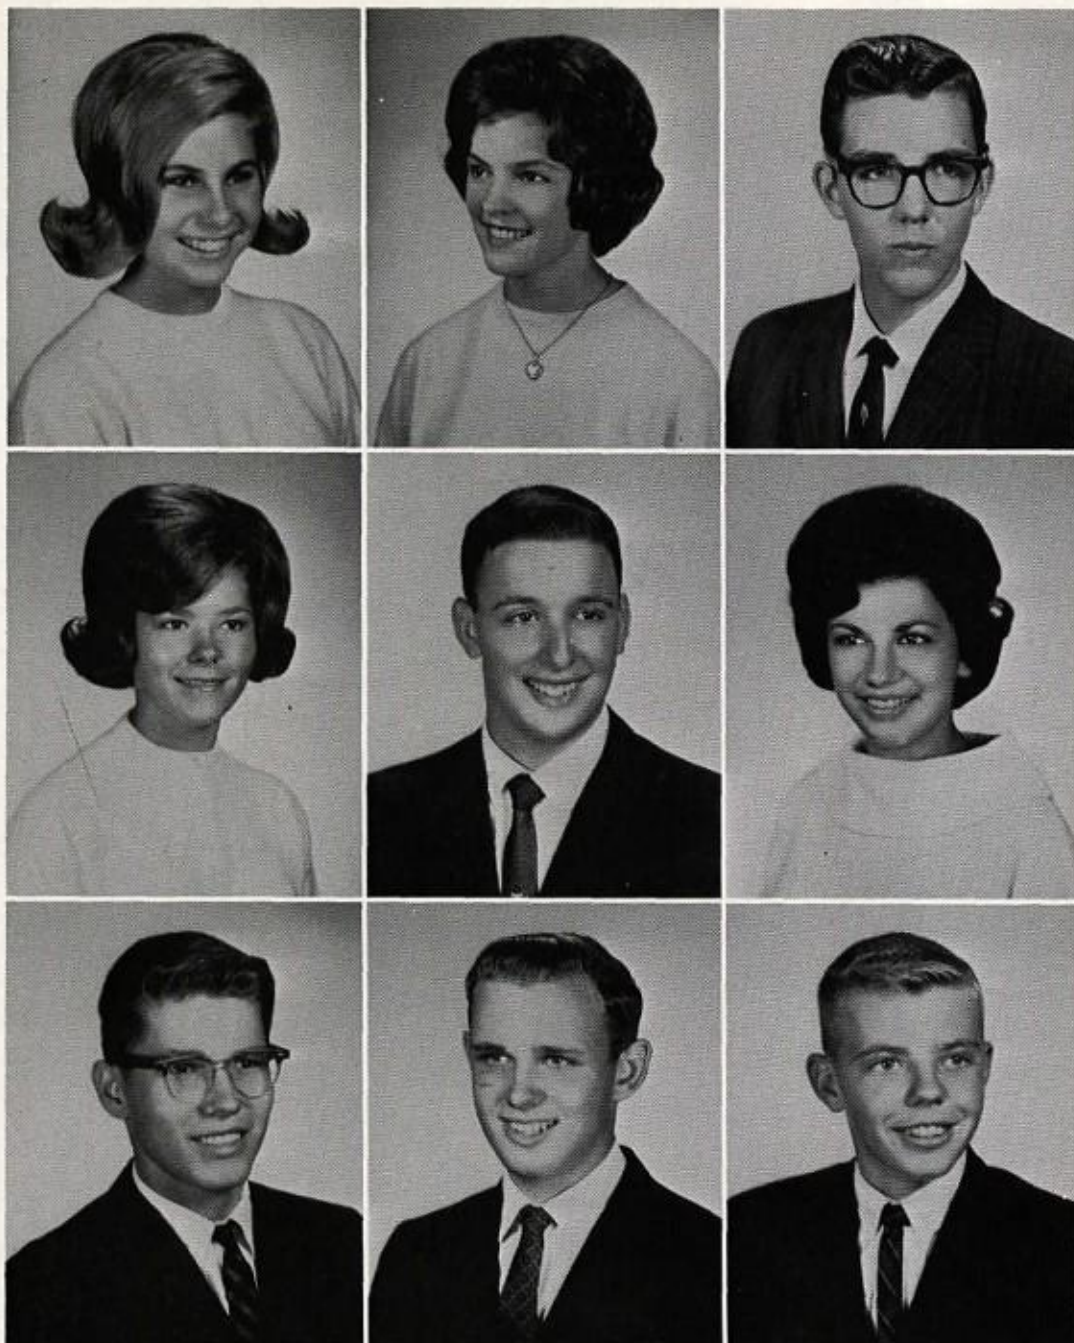

BELOW: Remember this is not a classless society, there are Seniors and there are others. RIGHT: Jam, stuff, cram, push harder, then everything might fit. It's got to last the whole year. BOTTOM RIGHT: Working and studying hard we began the year refreshed from summer vacation and willing to work for satisfactory grades.

Ups, Downs Frequent

Sophisticated? We asked ourselves what kind of impression did we want to leave on Park as the class of '64. We said we were nonconformists, yet this was belied by the maroon and navy blue combinations which branded us as conformists. We rebelled against the school lunches, saying we'd prefer Macdonald's hamburgers, hamburgers, and hamburgers. We told ourselves that rock'n roll wasn't for us, yet the records played at after-game dances weren't exactly waltzes. We complained of the apathy of the school, but the cheering at the last pep fests and then the District 18 Tournament proved us to be far from apathetic. Did you say you couldn't care less about your homework? Well, why did you work so hard? Colleges, class rank, and parents couldn't have had anything to do with it, could they? No, we weren't sophisticated if sophistication meant we couldn't be caught dead wearing the same color clothing or if constructive criticism was "out" along with the "Birds" and the "Beatles", and waltzes were in. Sophistication?

Readin', 'Ritin' and 'Rithmetic—that's how they made it up there. TOP LEFT: Nancy Miller is completely unengrossed in a book. ABOVE: Marshall Golden inspects electrical equipment. From the Rest of Us.

'That Was . . .

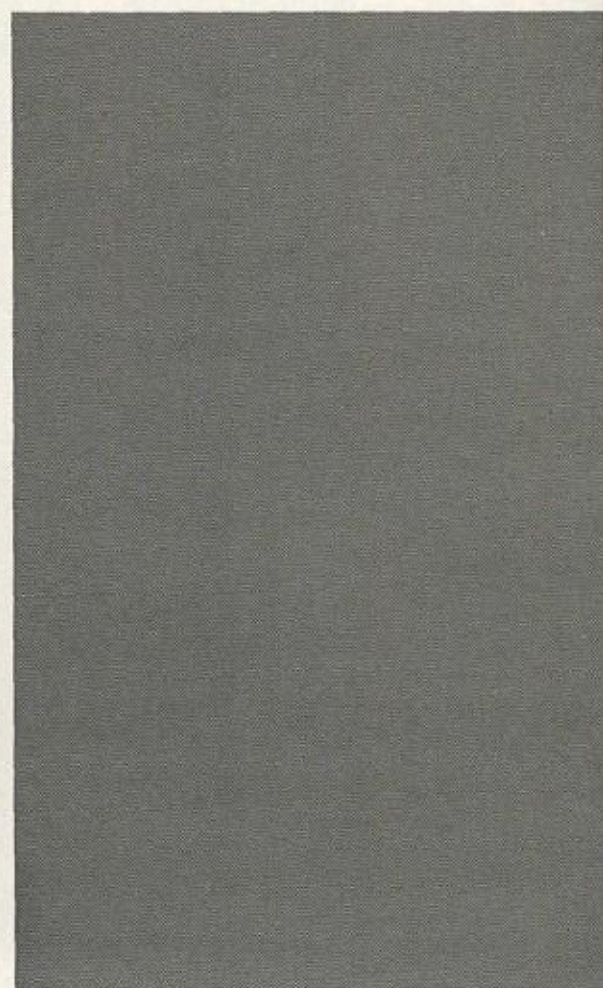

The Year That Was.'

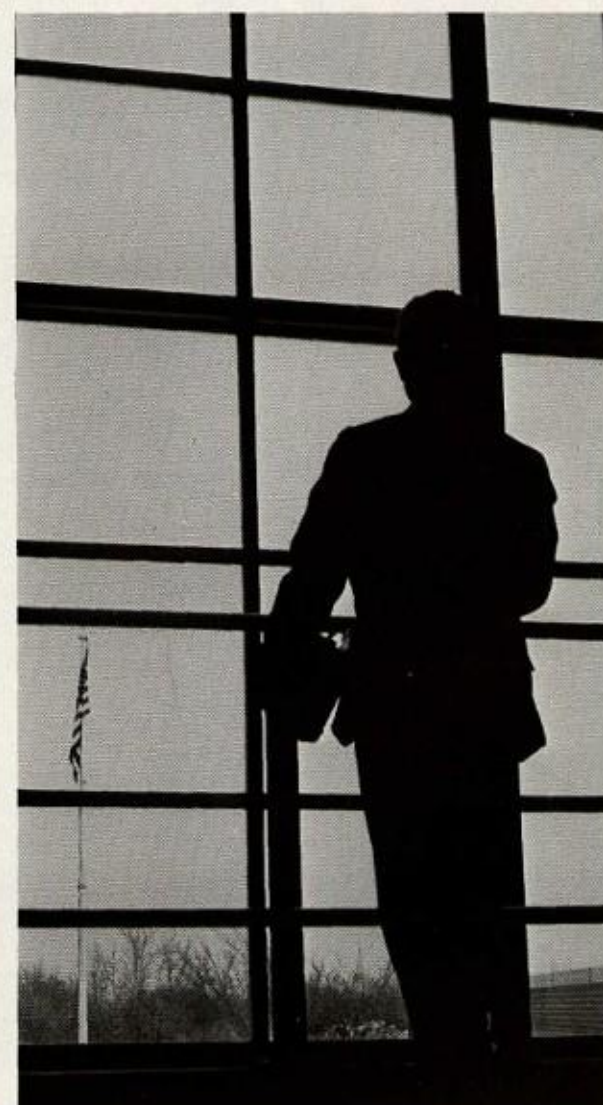

"... and on the day of graduation I stood looking out and I remembered. I remembered the friendly quiet in the halls before school and the sudden rush of cheery hello's as it grew time for first hour. I remembered the guilty pangs I had felt while running errands in the middle of class. I remembered the good-natured jostling as we left our last pep fest and the desolate emptiness after we had gone. I remembered the feeling of finality when I turned in books and paid fines for the last time at Park. I remembered the fond farewells exchanged between the students and I remembered the stock phrase of 'don't forget to write' shouted as we emptied our lockers and prepared to leave our alma mater. Park had finally opened its doors and surrendered us to the world."

"Let the word go forth . . . that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans."

JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY

Last year at this time . . .

. . . we set out on the monumental task of filling a record-breaking 272 pages with the story of Park—a story of individuals together and apart. Little did we realize at that time that we would be involved in another story—the story of the staff.

This pedantically anomic group found that it possessed certain phenomenal qualities unrecognized in its previous state of uselessness. Finding synonyms for "tenaciously" became second nature to some, while others found their life's purpose in getting six-inch lists to fit into four-inch spaces. Unforgettable were their battles with problems varying from defiant underclass pictures to 68,000 characters. But also unforgettable were the victories won by the efforts of many. Dedicated to a successful product and a satisfied staff, Miss Hattie Steinberg, adviser, saw us through hectic moments with adept leadership. Harassed by inspired editors, Cliff Wilder and Owen Franken, photographers, focused on everything in sight. Not to be forgotten was Taylor Publishing Company who, through their representative Dan Gleason, helped us make many critical decisions. Judy Lubet's division pages and cover design deserve special recognition for their excellence and for the cooperation they represent.

To all these people, we give our congratulations and thanks for making the presentation of the 1964 ECHOWAN more than a delivery but less than . . .

Sue and Mary Kay

Carol,
I'm sure you'll agree that the nuttiest teachers is one of the building. We've had so much fun in that class despite Caesar etc. etc. too bad we weren't together in any other classes. It's been fun eating with you at last! History has been more interesting with your presence (Ha!) Have a blast in Europe this summer but don't do anything I wouldn't do!
Love ya,
Javier

He drew a circle to cut me out,
Heretic, rebel, a thing to flout
But love and I had wit to win,
We drew a circle that took him in.

Prom, held at the Radisson Hotel, marks the beginning of the end.

Headache of Finals,

Voting for Student Council officers becomes a major affair.

Top-ten student Donna Beehler relates a message in her speech entitled "Solitude of Independence" at the outdoor Commencement exercises.

The mile-relay team spurts forward as Skip Lefler hands off to Bob Wagner in the preliminaries in the State Meet.

Sports, Plays Portray Arcs in Spring Circle

It is the time of year when diversified interests and talents come forth to spark the season with success and many activities enclose Park in the circle that is Spring. Thoughts of . . . "Oh, Put 'Em Back the Way They Was" and "Ah Has Spoken!" symbolize Li'l Abner's unifying force by involving everyone, from the cast to the enthusiastic audience . . . A hectic week of Student Council campaigning . . . "Happiness is chewing gum in English and not getting caught and voting for Nancy Lear!" . . . At the same time the Parkettes eagerly await the arrival of June 13 . . . "Just think, London, Rome, Paris—" . . . "Batter up!", shouts the umpire and another athletic trial is off to a hopeful start . . . "Front Row, Center" sums up the long hard hours of practice in the water . . . "Oh, if I make a mistake on opening night I'll just die!" . . . Prom in the Gold Room of the Radisson, the dinner afterwards and then the picnic . . . The distribution of caps and gowns and the exclamation, "I can't wait to see my diploma!" . . . With each hour, concentration on tests becomes harder and finally at 2:30, June 2—the circle is complete.

PTA Exhibit night proves exhilarating for the participants.

"I feel like I lost 10 pounds when they cut my hair off!" exclaims Rick Pearson after L'il Abner.

Joe Klugman, Donna Beehler, Jim Forbes and Peg Strobel converse with Miss Carolyn Steel, counselor, about National Merit Scholarship program.

Mammy and Pappy Yokum (Elaine Lapides and John Clingerman) discover that Dogpatch is unnecessary.

"Ah sees it!" as Daisy Mae (L. Champlin) and Abner (G. Gears) envision the Sadie Hawkins Day race.

L'il Abner (G. Gears) and his cronies (G. Gears, J. Robbins, J. Bix, K. Robbins, R. Rosch, E. Strand, I. Swatez) flick fleas from their noses and contemplate the druthers of matrimony.

Marryin' Sam (Barry London) joins Dogpatchers in a salute to their hero, Jubilation T. Cornpone.

Finally, after the muscle men have been transformed back into Dogpatchers and the statue of Jubilation T. Cornpone has been proclaimed a national shrine and duly honored, Marryin' Sam pronounces Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae man and wife.

'Ban the Bomb, Save Dogpatch' — Says Abner

Who will soon forget the green and purple Dogpatch buttons, the lyrics of "Jubilation T. Cornpone" echoing through the halls after school, the locked auditorium door to keep out prying eyes, the announcements over the loudspeaker and the magic of over 60 students dancing and singing their way through the comic-strip land of Dogpatch, U.S.A.? The cast will long remember Earthquake Magoon getting hit in the eye with a cigar, turned-out toes and bent knees and vines being lowered into Bullmoose's office. They will never forget Mr. DeClerc's famous words, "You're not listening, I can tell!" and "You've got to get more love into it!" And memories will always remain—the anguish of hearing that the play would be postponed, the enthusiastic opening-night audience of 900, 18 set changes, the fear that the skimpy costumes might not hold together, the thrill of reading about "our play" in the paper and after it all, the cast party at Howard Johnson's.

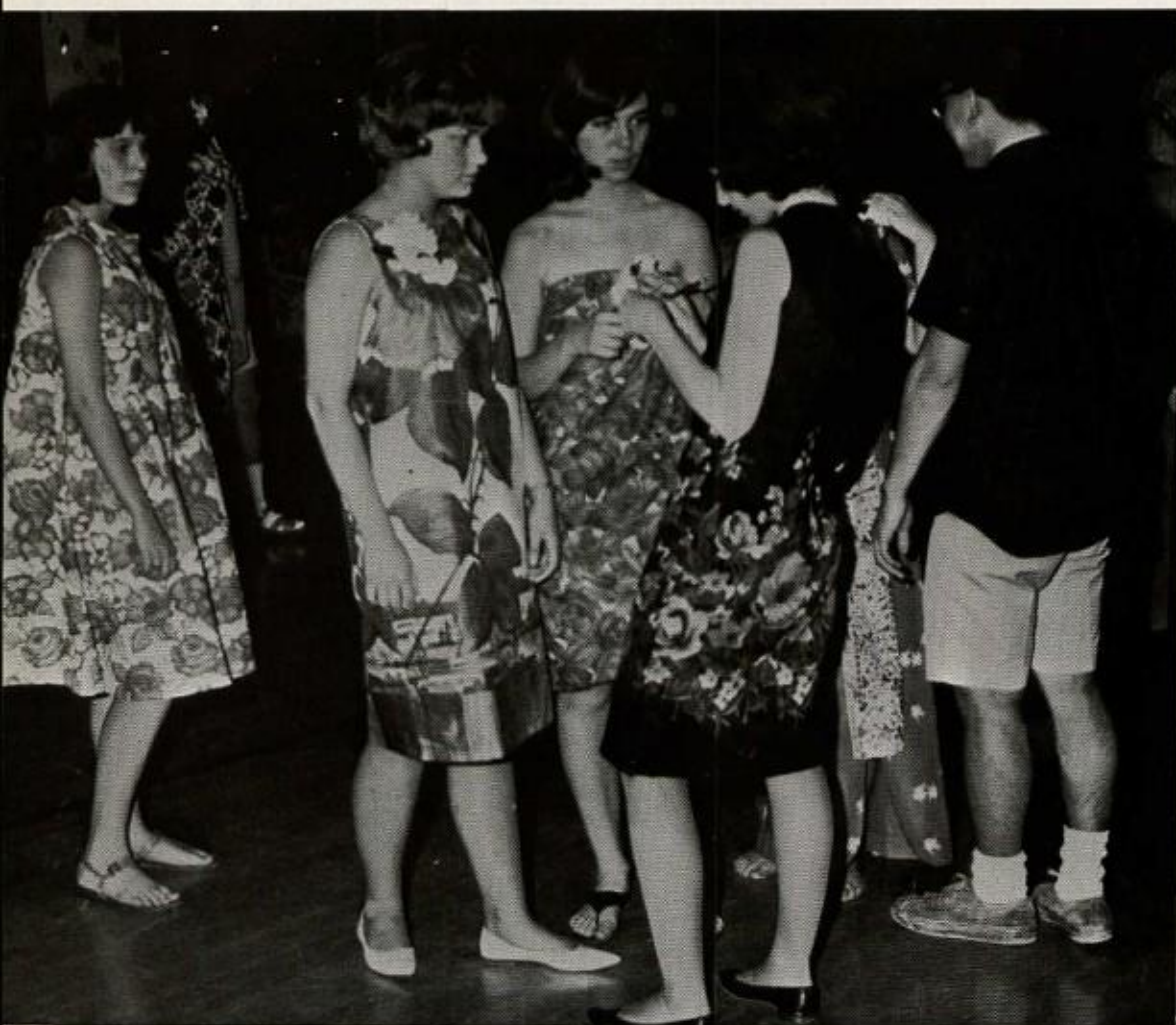

To make a profound statement, director Roger DeClerc leaps on stage and interrupts the Dogpatch cronies and wives during dress rehearsal.

Tropical Changes Park Into Hawaiian Island

Boys contemplate such weighty problems as "What's in the pot."

With typical Hawaiian atmosphere, leis, orchids and a South Seas combo, the Tresspassers, the gym was converted into a beautiful island setting for Tropical. Imitation palm trees, streamers and colorful travel posters expounded the lures of Hawaii. Boys dressed in deck pants and cut-off jeans, girls in sarongs and muu-muus and finally the crowning of this year's Tropical queen, Sandy Herskovitz, sophomore, added to the girl-ask-boy event. Each queen candidate, selected by ticket numbers, opened her flower box hoping to discover the winning orchid inside. This annual dance was the culminating effort of Canteen Co-chairmen Diana Shimizu, Doug Fielder and their committees.

Flower-splashed dresses and unusual footwear harmonize with the decorations.

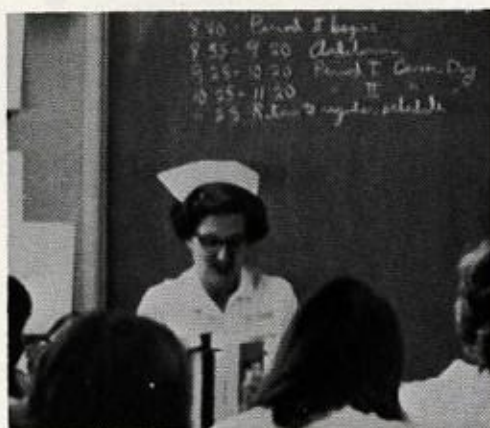

"Guess what? I've chosen the lucky orchid!"

Decision-making, individualism and freedom's goals are debated.

Student Council leaders urge participation in discussion groups.

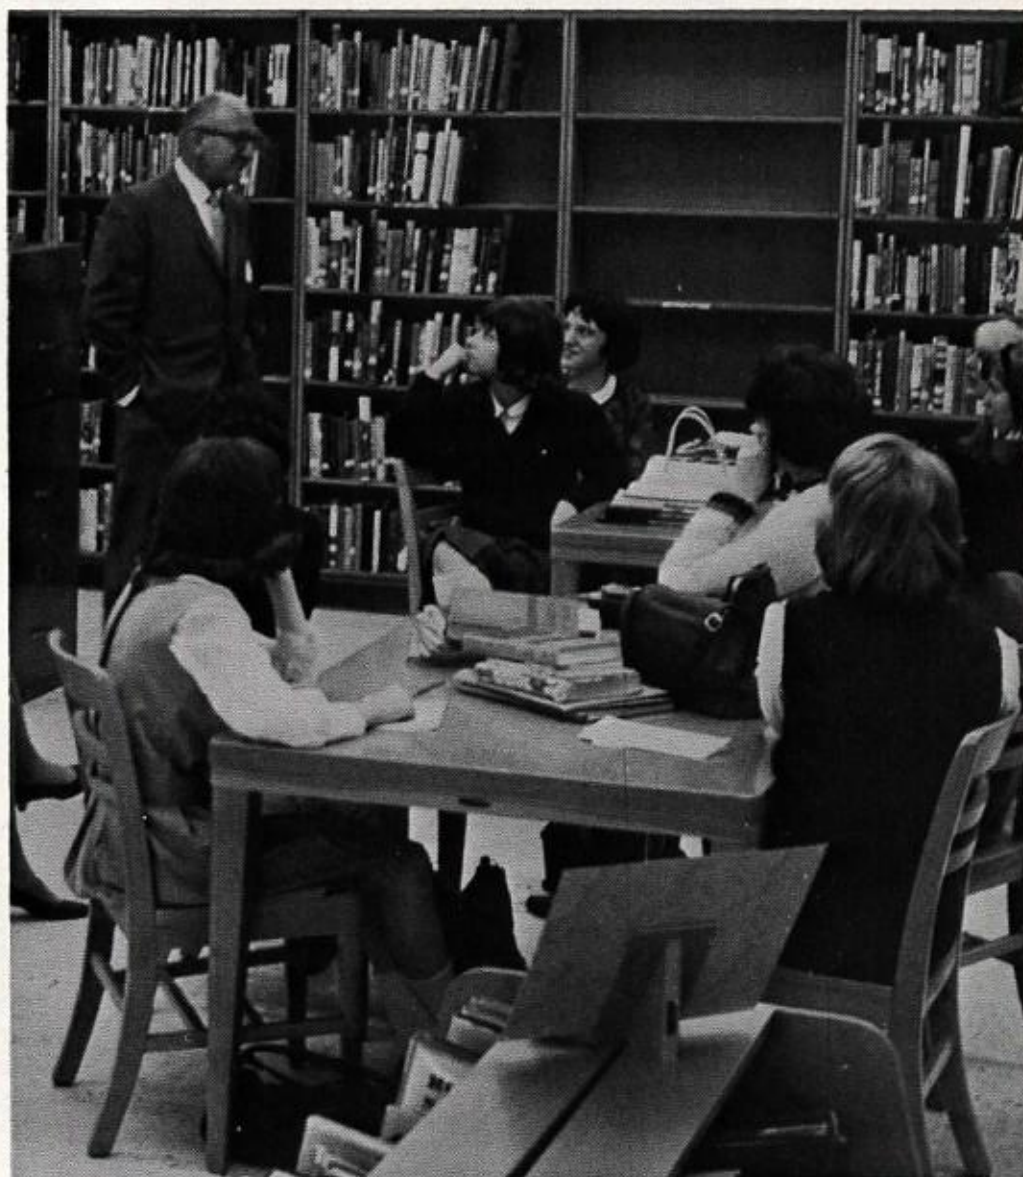

New Thoughts, Ideas Set Students Thinking

Prerequisites and satisfactions of a nurse's profession are explained.

Youth Conference, entitled "Escape from Freedom," featured George Shapiro as the keynote speaker. After debating questions in the several discussion groups, students returned to the auditorium to relate their ideas and to listen to an ethnic folksinger.

Career Day gave students the advantage of investigating future vocations. Juniors attended two different sessions to acquire first-hand knowledge from persons with experience in their respective fields. The lectures acquainted students with information relative to future educational opportunities.

The psychologist's realm dwells in the actions and attributes of the mind.

The awing and spectacular sight at "They Shall Have Music" excites and captivates the thousands of spectators.

Spring: A Mixture of . . .

With no signs of nervousness and beaming brightly, Linda Gauper models in Blue Tri's "Fashionation."

Preceding his Athletic Banquet speech, WCCO Sports Director Paul Giel does some extra reminiscing with Dick Gislason, counselor, and Bertil Johnson, principal.

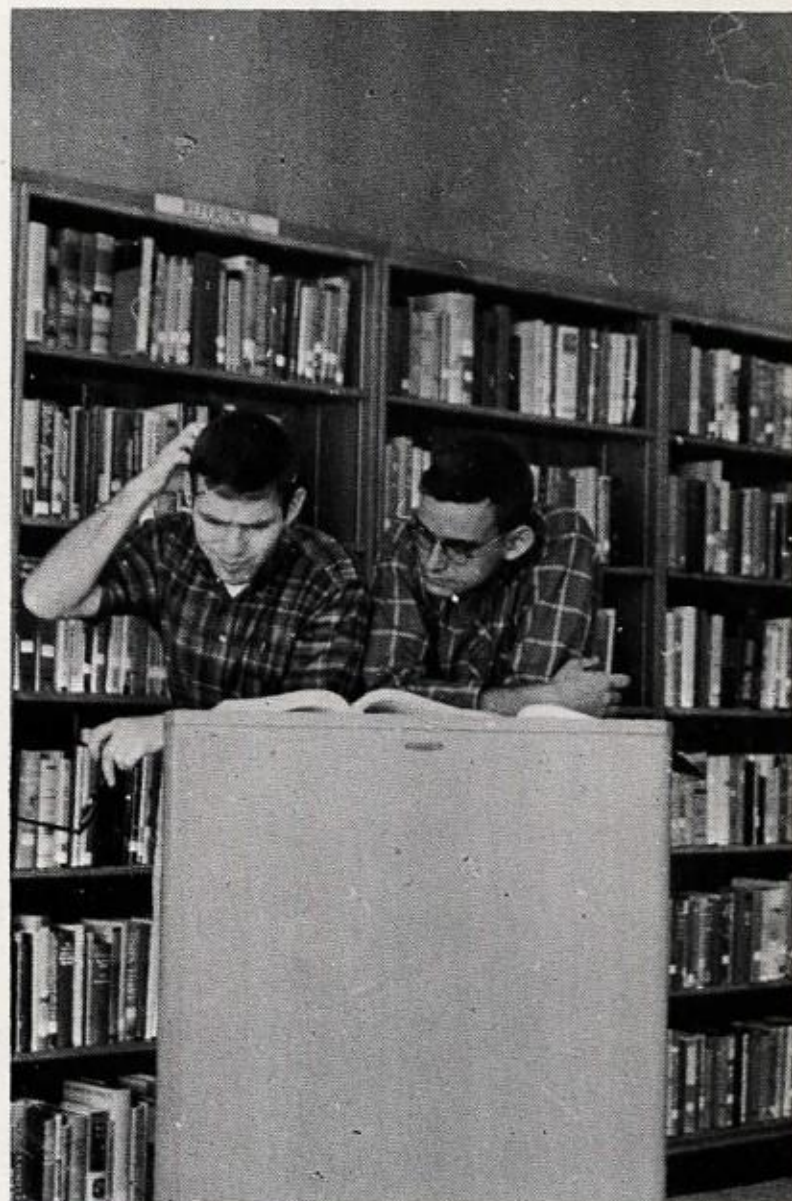

Concerts, Dinners, Contests, Fashions, Fun

Sneaking a glimpse of the yearbook at their party are staff members B. Kojis, N. Beaubaire, P. Strobel, K. Murray, and F. Rubenstein.

The challenge of performances and the excitement of winning awards packed the spring of '64 for Park students. "Fashionation" culminated a year of work for Blue Tri. Culottes, shirts, blazers, two-piece swim suits, knit tops and long-length formals were shown as the fashions for spring. Captivating their audiences, while joining together in harmony, were the choir and bands in the festival, "They Shall Have Music," at the Minneapolis Auditorium. For the athletes, an Awards Banquet was held for letter-winners from the various sports. Guest speaker Paul Giel, WCCC Sports Director, talked to the guests about the importance of athletics. In declamation, Dale Mossey and Mike Posnick, seniors, won acclaim for their speaking ability. Park students again displayed their talents at Student Exhibit Night by presenting to parents various activities and projects. Participating in the Star World Affairs Contest were Mike Posnick and Terry Basford. Terry placed as a finalist, thus winning a trip to Washington, D. C.

Mike Posnick and Dale Mossey work on their speeches.

Surrounded by silence, Terry Basford and Mike Posnick concentrate as they ponder over their Star World Affairs test.

The Student Council sponsored its final production, Charlie Brown Day, which replaced the annual Jesterday carnival. The Dudley Riggs' Brave New Workshop was the first highlight of the eventful evening. It presented local and world problems in the manner of a satiric comedy. Other attractions were a showing of the movie "North by Northwest," a dance to the music of Jimmy Hill and the Trespassers, the instrumental entertainment of the London Jazz Trio and a peppy, rhythmic dance by the Parkettes.

Dudley Riggs' actors enliven the audience with self-composed comedy skits.

Charlie Brown Day Puts Life in Old Tradition

Jimmy Hill and the Trespassers provide dance music for Parkites.

A guest appearance of KDWB disk jockey Charlie Brown produces an extra spark.

The swim team adds vigor to a surfing number with the Surf Belles.

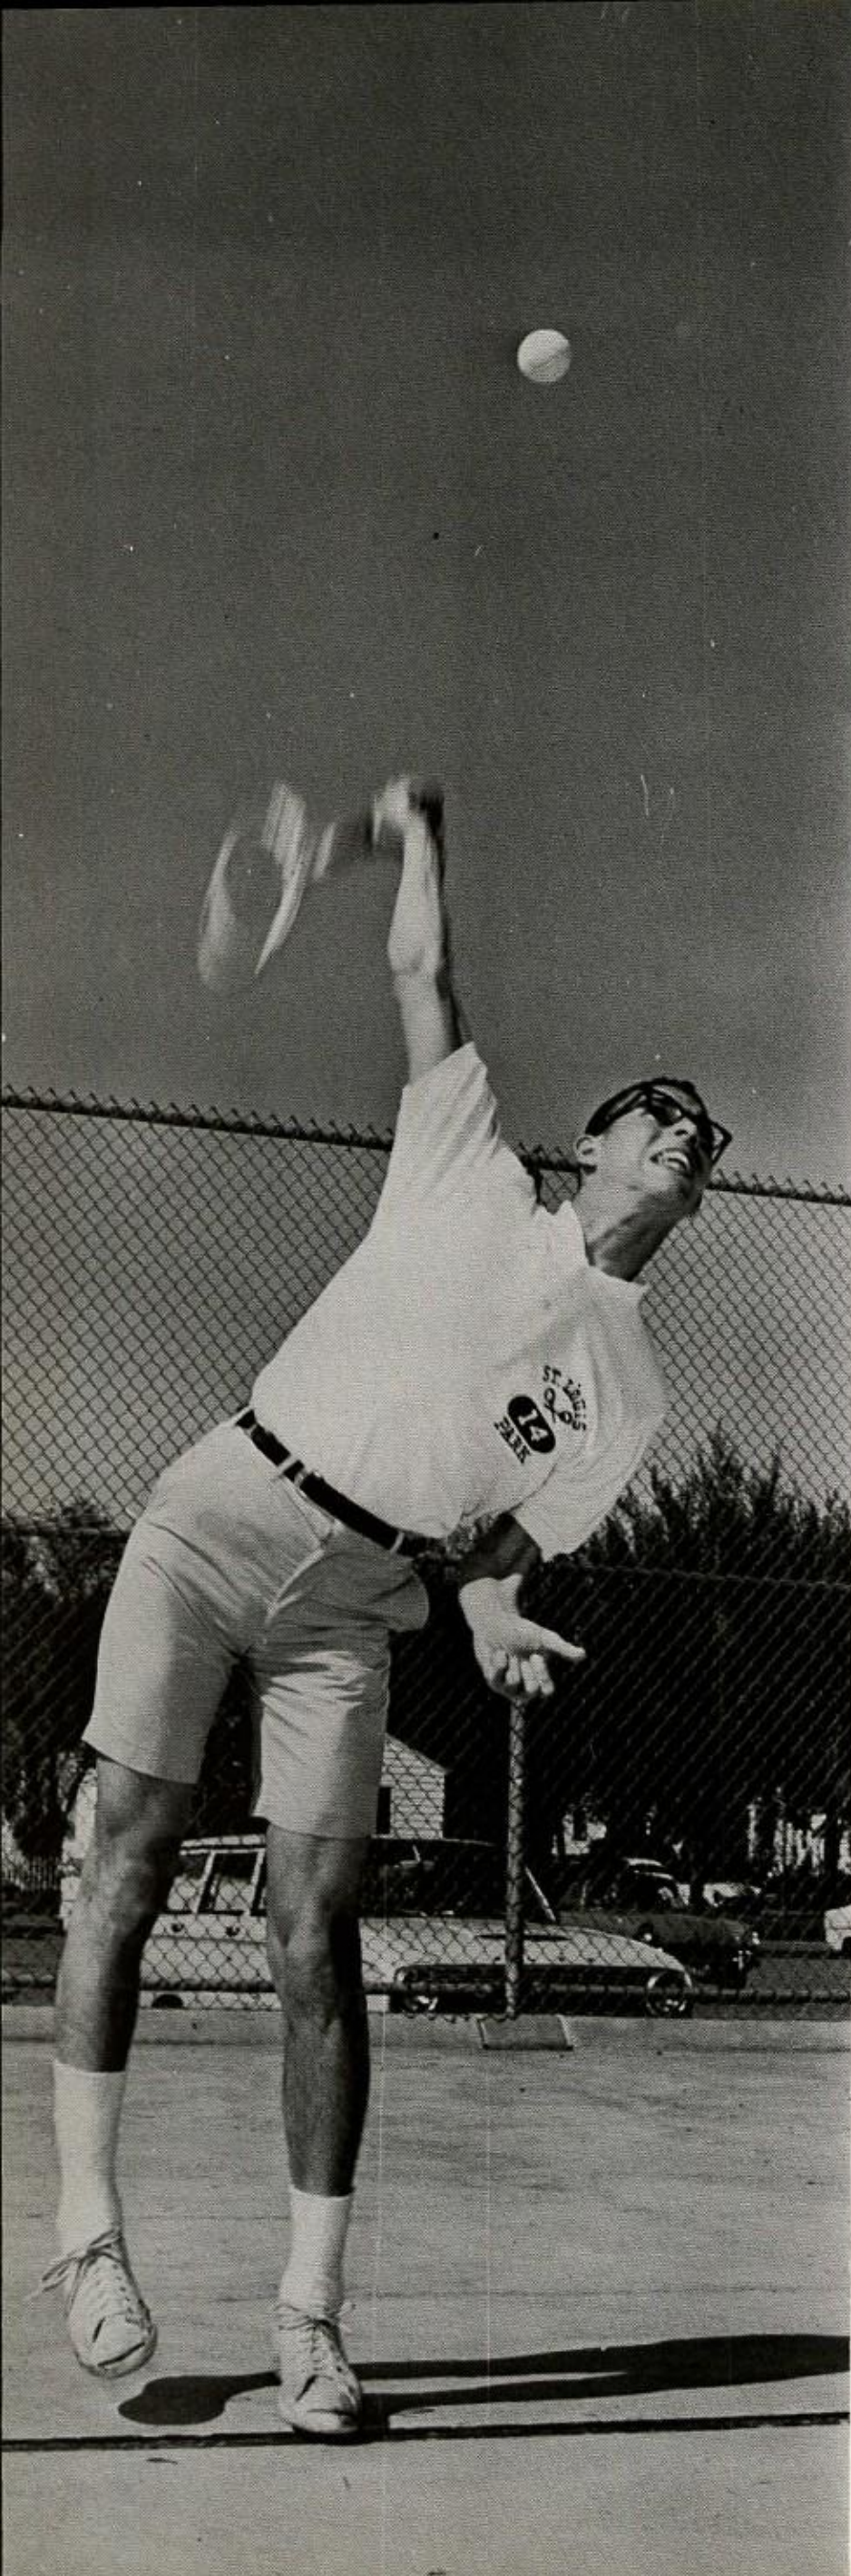

Hours of practice and hard work for the Surf Belles were brought to a climax in "Front Row, Center." The annual show, which was produced under the direction of Mrs. Sally Callahan, consisted of precision numbers done to famous tunes. An added attraction was the boys' swimming team performing in one of the acts and illustrating stunt diving. The girls choreographed the various acts and also helped sew costumes.

Gayle Skog, first-place solo winner in State Competition, Junior Division, executes her form.

The Surf Belles perform each number with the perfection which can only be accomplished through effort and hard work.

Tennis Squad Completes

With only three returning seniors, Park's tennis team was able to post a record of 6-3 in Lake Conference play this season. Furthering their success in tournament play, they ranked fourth in the District and sixth in the Region.

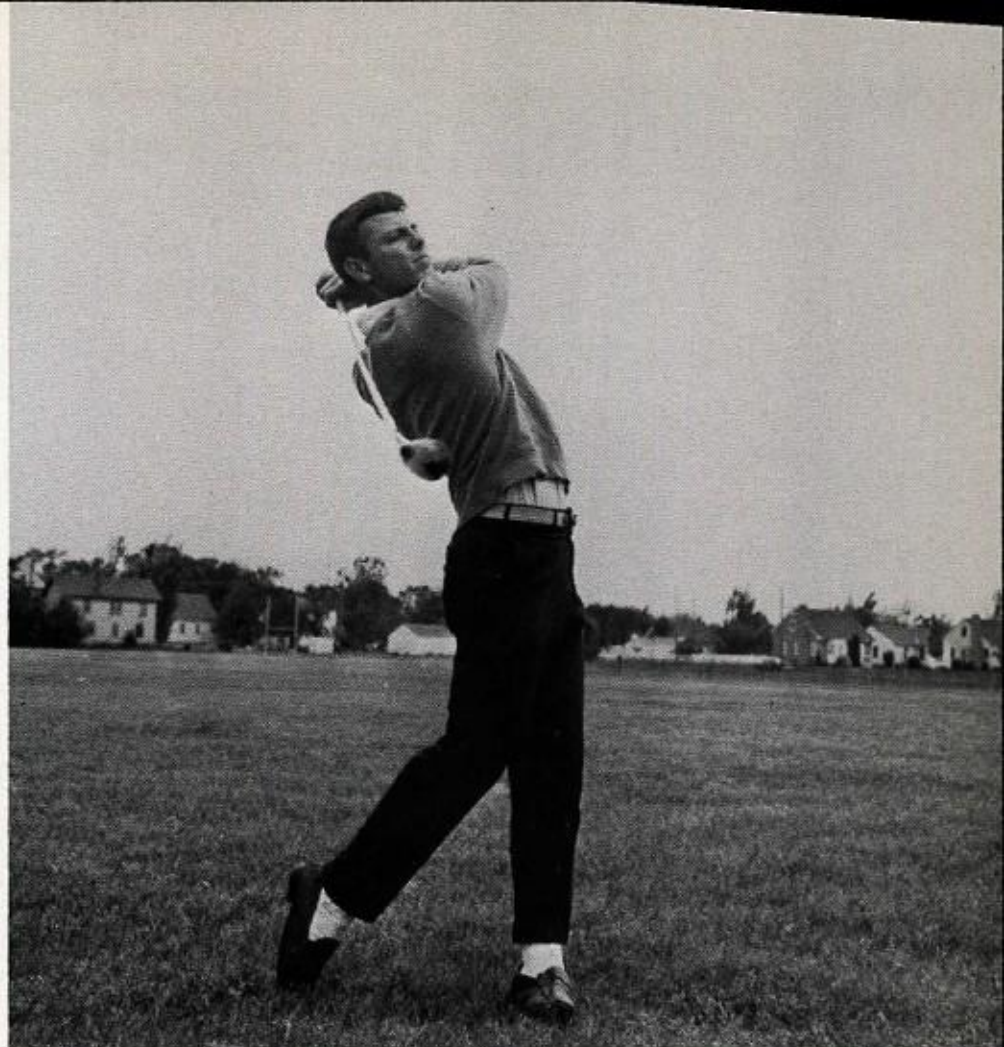

Outstanding among the members of the team was Paul Krause, leading Park in singles play with a third place in the District and a fourth in the Region. In other singles action, Frank Laine and Mark Friedson gave the team the extra support it needed for its six victories. The first team of Doug Fielder and Jack Bornstein in doubles play was highly regarded in the Conference although they did not qualify for championship play. It is worthy to note that all of the squad members won at least half of their matches.

The golf team, led by seniors Jeff Johnson and Rick Sorenson, posted an 8-1 record in Conference play this year. The team went on to take third in the District and qualified Johnson, Sorenson, Rick Johnson and Terry Simon for the Region. Jeff Johnson and Sorenson went on to the State tournament.

In tournament play, the Orioles defeated Minnetonka 8-4 to qualify for District play, only to be edged by Waconia 2-1. Gerry Crawford, Bob Olson and Larry Swigart led the team in hitting; Crawford posting 400 for the season. Backing up Burmaster's 4-4 record and Olson's 2-1 record was fielding ace Roger Lindquist, who played errorless ball the entire season. Steve Feinstein's speed and agility paid off as he was league leader in stolen bases with six. Feinstein and Swigart each scored 8 runs, to lead the team. Burmaster and Feinstein made the All-Conference team for their performances.

Paul Grehl holds the Skipper's runner at third while Dick Burmaster fires the ball toward the plate. Park advanced to District play by beating Minnetonka.

Surf Belles Swim to 1st in State Competition

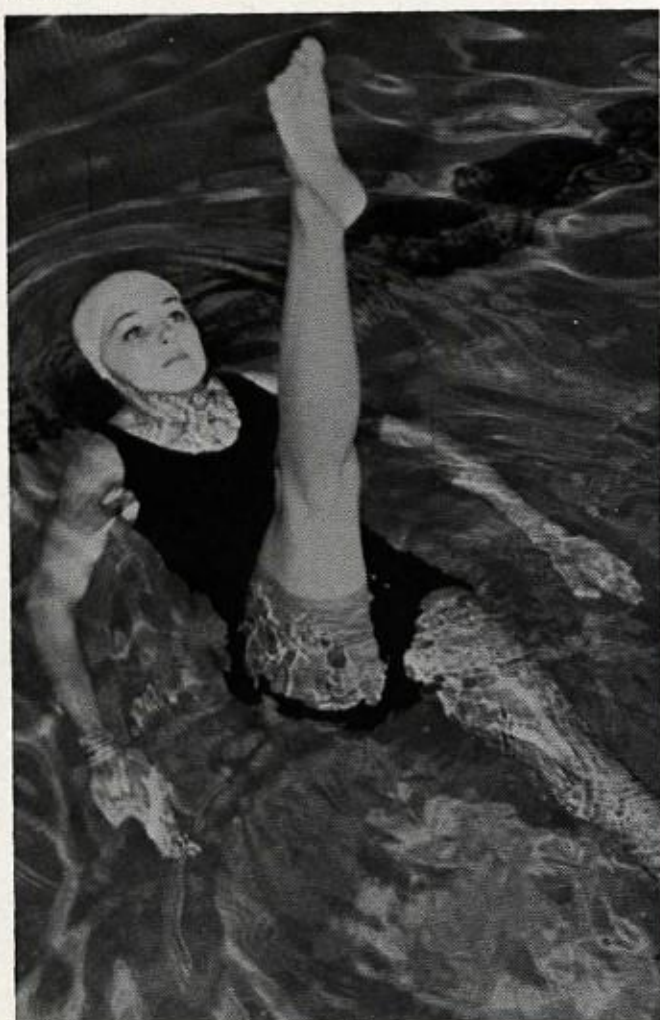

The Surf Belles, although not publicized nearly as much as other spring sports, has done much to further Park's winning image in sports. The synchronized swimming team, coached by Mrs. Sally Callahan, went to Hibbing for the State Competition this spring. Approximately 20 schools participated in the State meet this year. They easily took first place again, as they did last spring and placed no less than second in any single event. In the solo Novice division, Gail Gordon took first and Lorri Hlavac second. Margaret Hammerot, Candy Kraehling, Bonnie Kutzler and Mary Fulford placed first in Novice team competition. In the duet finals, Hammerot and Kraehling took first. Park placed second also in these events.

In the Junior division, Gayle Skog and Judy Anderson swam to a 1-2 finish in the solo event. Anderson and Gordon were first in the duet and the team of Skog, Hlavac, Gordon and Anderson finished first in the Junior team division. Out of the advanced Surf Belle group, sixteen girls were chosen to compete in the meet this year.

Surf Belles Gail Gordon and Judy Anderson, swimming at Hibbing in the State Competition, capture first place in the duet in the Junior division.

Judy Anderson demonstrates the form which gave her second place in the Junior solo division.

Randy Jones puts out a strong effort on the anchor-leg of the half-mile relay to add points.

On your marks. Set. Go! Steve Hickey lunges forward out of the blocks at the start of the 120-yard high hurdles, placing among the leaders.

Half-miler Bob Neumer finishes his quarter in the mile relay, handing off the baton to miler Bob Wagner. Park finished first in this relay.

The track team, under the new coach Orville Beis, with his able assistants, Eugene Wright and Jack Willhite, had a tremendous season, taking five firsts and two seconds in Lake competition. The team went on to take first in the District, third in the Region, and third in the State. This year's success was due to a good balance in strength in all events, Mike Salloway and Randy Jones led the sprinters, Jones progressing through the District in tournament competition. Of the distance men, Bob Wagner and Bob Neumer were outstanding. Wagner won the mile in the District, Region and State, set a new State record with an outstanding time of 4:18.9. Neumer swept aside all competition to become the State half-mile champion. Mike Nelson, Park's ace shot-putter both last year and this year, gave a good account of himself, winning third-place honors in the State meet. The best pole vaulter Park has ever had, Jim Mershon, injured his ankle in Conference competition and was unable to participate in tournament play. The track team has continued to hold up its outstanding reputation as one of the best teams in State competition.

Emotions Rise With Graduation Activities

Floor-length formals, dinner jackets, corsages and boutonnieres characterize proper attire for this year's Junior-Senior Prom. Couples dance in the dimly lighted room while mellow music fills the North Hall of the Radisson Hotel.

As the summer of '64 approached, chaos and confusion filled the hallowed halls of Park High. To all underclassmen these warm spring days meant the end of school for another year, but to the stately seniors they signified the beginning of all the anxieties and sorrows which accompany graduation. The first few days as excited sophomores, just three years before, seemed like only yesterday, although assemblies, dances, parties and commencement drew near.

The enchanting beauty of Prom at the Radisson Hotel placed everyone in a mystical trance which lasted through the anticipations of the Senior Assembly, the excitement of Senior Skip Day, the somberness of Baccalaureate and the special Senior Class Breakfast. Caps and gowns added to the spell which made the long lines and many speeches of Commencement memorable. After all good-byes and best wishes were said the informal All-Night Party ended the events of three fulfilling years of education and activities for the Class of 1964.

Graduation Day begins as silverware clatters at the Senior Breakfast in the Radisson Hotel. Short speeches reminisce the year of '64, bringing back many memories.

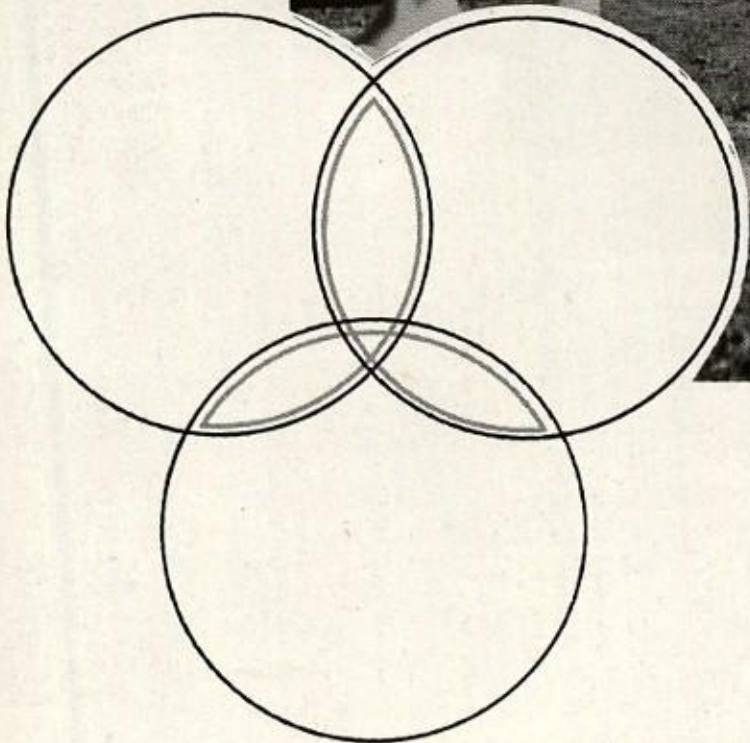

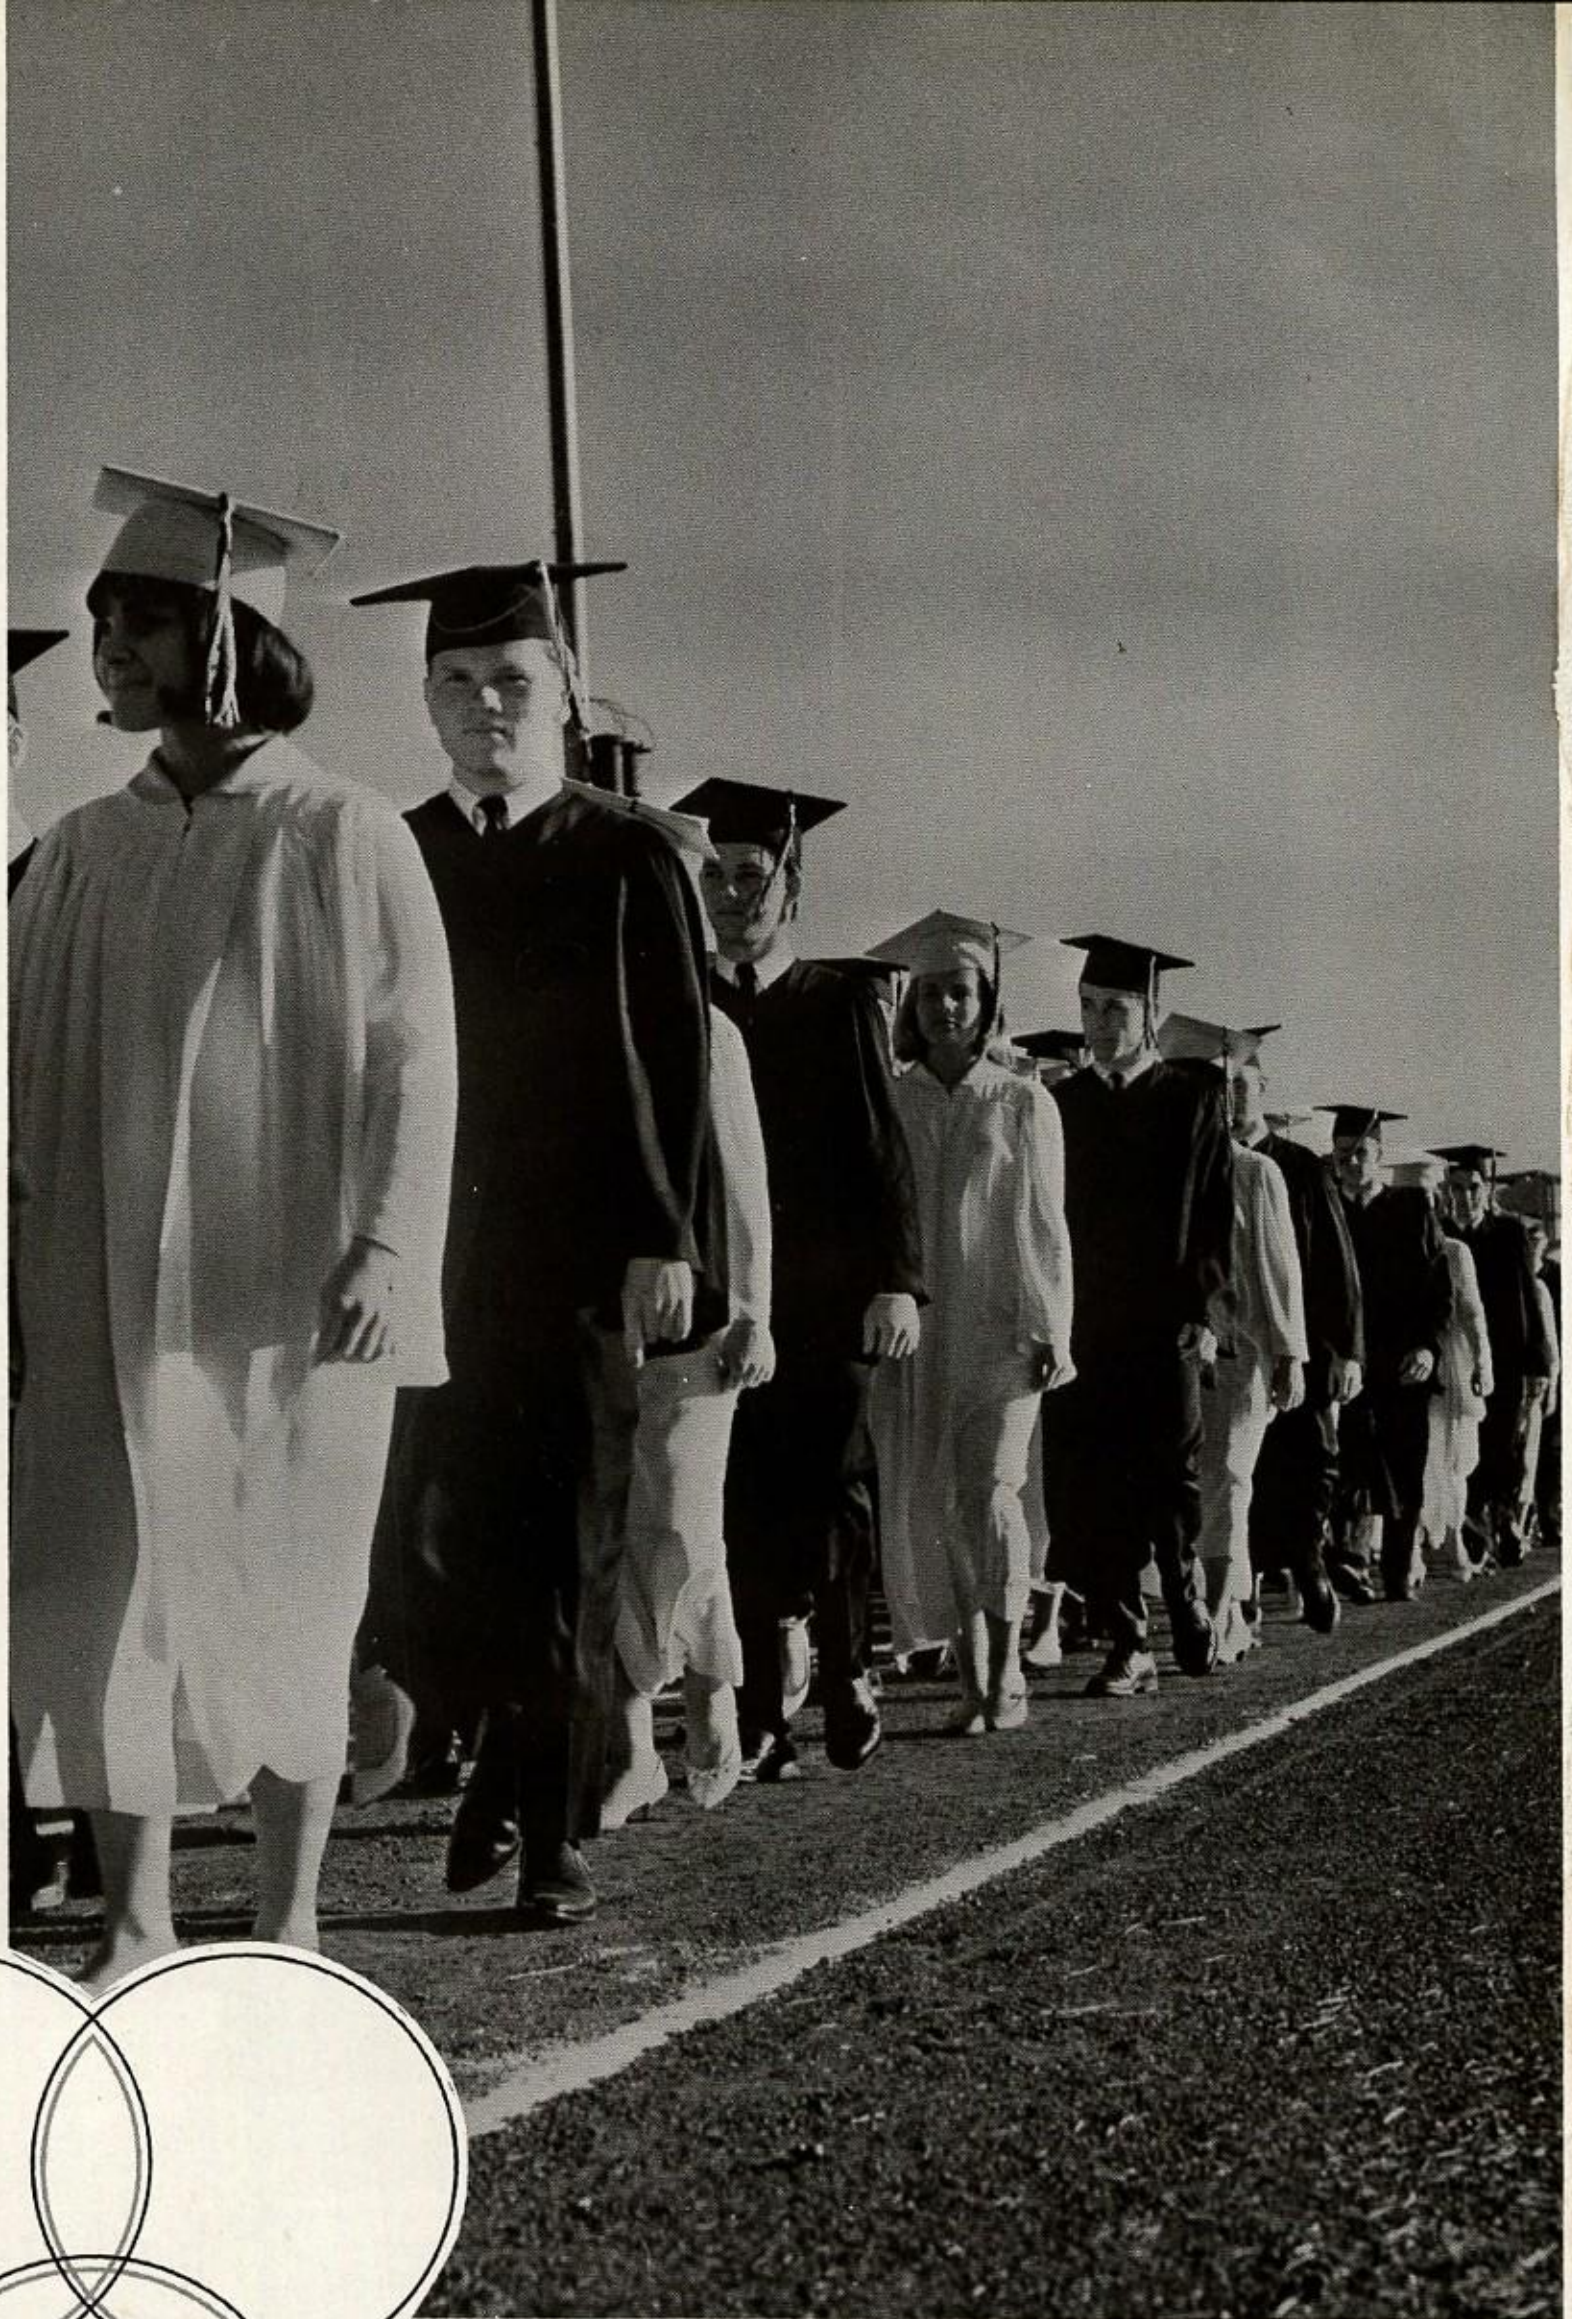

The gymnasium echoes with music by the school's choir under Gordon Griebenow as Baccalaureate Services progress. An address by the Reverend Quinten Alfors of Park's Evangelical Free Church adds solemnity to the occasion.

The radiant sun glistens on the transformed Athletic Field as 585 graduating seniors receive their diplomas during Commencement.

Tony Olivia and Rich Rollins of the Twins headline the oriental All-Night Party as music by the Chancellors and Trespassers, bingo, valuable prizes and mounds of food keep the graduates awake.
